Lectureship in Human Geography

Salary: €50,807 - €81,452 p.a. (Approx. GB£45,300 - £72,620; US$68,600 - $110,000 p.a.)

(5 year or permanent post, with the possibility of permanency depending on the circumstances of the successful candidate)

Applications are invited for the position of Lecturer in Human Geography in the UCD School of Geography, Planning & Environmental Policy (GPEP). Applications are sought from outstanding scholars with substantive research interests in any area of human geography that would enhance the School's research profile.

The successful applicant will contribute significantly to the quality expansion of research in the School by undertaking and publishing high quality research and scholarship in her/his field of expertise within human geography. In addition, the successful candidate will participate effectively in the School's graduate and undergraduate programs.

University College Dublin (UCD) is a large and diverse University whose origin dates back to 1854. There are over 22,000 students including 2,500 international students from more than 80 countries. The University is situated on a large modern campus about 4km to the south of the centre of Dublin. The School of Geography, Planning and Environmental Policy offers a vibrant research and teaching environment led by its Head, Professor Alun Jones.

Research in the School is organised around three major research themes:

- Economy, Environmental Change and Sustainability
- Governance, Public Policy and Planning
- Society, Time and Place

Candidates must possess a PhD in Geography (or will have successfully completed a PhD by the time of taking up post). It is anticipated that the successful candidate will take up post in September 2010 or as soon as possible thereafter.
