

Connecting Communities

Archaeological Research Day 2018-19

Fry Lecture Theatre, Sutherland Building, Friday, 14th December, 9.30am-5.15pm

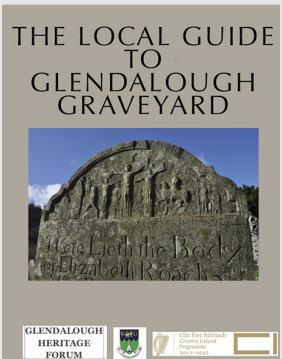

Research undertaken within the School of Archaeology connects with a wide range of communities on a variety of levels. Sometimes, the connection is with communities of scholars engaged in similar or complementary research in universities around the world. Occasionally our work leads us to identify new and distinct communities in the archaeological record. In other instances, the connections run across communities of colleagues in the wider archaeology and heritage sectors - museums, government agencies, heritage officers and archaeological consultancies. Of growing importance in recent years are our connections with communities outside the archaeological profession including local history societies, community fora, school students, artists, and food producers.

The UCD School of Archaeology Research Day for 2018/19 will showcase how School staff - lecturers and post-doctoral fellows - are linking out to wider communities both professional and public with their research.

It will also be an opportunity to remember a dear colleague, Dr Eileen Reilly, who passed away earlier this year and is sorely missed by the archaeological community.

Staff and postgraduate research projects will also be on display throughout the day.

Come and join us for our Christmas Archaeology Research Day!

9.30–9.40

Welcome

Prof Colin Scott, Principal, College of Social Sciences and Law

Eileen Reilly In Memoriam

Prof Aidan O'Sullivan, Deputy Head of School

9.40–10.00am Graeme Warren and Conor McDermott with Matt Seaver and others

Glendalough Heritage Forum: community archaeology and engagement

10.00–10.20am Brendan O'Neill

Souterrain Ware: updating our understanding of early medieval locally made ceramics

10.20–10.40am Steve Davis with Knut Rassman and Jane Downes

From Boyne to Brodgar(-ish): Large-scale geophysical surveys 2014-2018

10.40 – 10.55am Discussion

10.55 – 11.20am Tea & Coffee

11.20 – 11.40am Meriel McClatchie with Caroline Cowley, Christine Baker, Fiona Hallinan, Sabina MacMahon, Anne Mullee

All Bread Is Made of Wood: This Dirt - A Public Art Intervention at Swords Castle

11.40am-12.00pm Ben Elliot

REFUGIUM: tracing the acoustic connections between communities and place within the Late Pleistocene caves of Creswell Crags

12.00–12.20pm Jessica Smyth with University of Bristol, National Museum of Ireland

Exploring the Irish bog butter phenomenon

12.20 – 12.40pm Alan Peatfield

Minoan figures: kinship, ancestors, community

12.40–12.55pm Discussion

12.55–2.00pm Lunch

2.00–2.20pm Aidan O'Sullivan

Communicating Experimental Archaeology: Our approaches to public outreach and engagement at UCD CEAMC

2.20–2.40pm Amanda Kelly

'Why tunnel through a mountain, when a siphon would suffice?' Watering the Knossos region from the Roman to Venetian periods

2.40–3.00pm Neil Carlin

Cosmological travellers: Beaker-associated burial activity and identity construction from an Irish perspective

3.00–3.20pm Claire Cave

Linking culture and nature: UNESCO best practice

3.20 – 3.35pm Discussion

3.35 – 4.00pm Tea & Coffee

4.00–4.20pm Annalisa Christie

Community archaeology and outreach: recent work in the Maldives and Tanzania

4.20–4.40pm Elise Alonzi

Mobility in religious and lay communities in medieval Ireland: the biogeochemical evidence

4.40–5.00pm Tadhg O'Keeffe

What the European scholarly community needs to know about Ireland: Beal Boru and the end of the early middle ages

5.00–5.15pm Final discussion and close of research day

Session 1

Session 2

Session 3

Session 4