

LLM European Law & Public Affairs

(One Year Full-Time or Two Years Part-time)

Introduction

This programme offers a genuinely interdisciplinary approach to European studies, in order to analyse how our understanding of the nature of the EU is shaped by our particular disciplinary perspectives. Students take at least one module in politics to broaden their understanding of the EU.

Leading this analysis and discussion, the faculty members in the UCD Sutherland School of Law have engaged in major research across the disciplines.

Research topics by faculty have included the institutional structure of the EU, to critiques of existing areas of EU law such as competition law and environmental law. This interdisciplinary programme is directed at well-qualified graduates in law, politics and associated disciplines.

The qualities and features of the programme ensure that it attracts many international students, giving you the opportunity to learn from the perspective of students from all around the world. The programme is delivered by academics from different fields. This demonstrates the wide range of career options that are available for students to pursue after they graduate. This diverse atmosphere also contributes to the suitability of the programme for students with distinct professional objectives.

The modules selected for the programme provide an interdisciplinary learning process and offer varied perspectives on diverse subjects. This integrated environment allows students to analyse the matters being studied from multiple angles, helping us to construct a plural and comprehensive base of knowledge.

I recommend the LLM European Law & Public Affairs programme to anyone interested in learning more about the functioning of the EU institutions and the effect of its provisions on national law, applying it in the context of public, private or third sector.
