AUC Grievance Procedure

UCD Sports Club Grievance Policy

1. PURPOSE

UCD Sports Clubs are committed to promoting and maintaining good workplace relations and safeguarding the well-being of all employees and volunteers. It is recognised that from time to time difficulties will occur in the normal course of interaction between Club members/employees/volunteers. This is to be expected in any organisation or workplace and each UCD Sports Club endeavours to resolve any issues affecting its employees and/or volunteers quickly, efficiently and in an atmosphere of mutual trust and confidence. In most instances, it is intended that issues will be resolved informally between employee/volunteer and the line manager/ person assigned to manage in their Club. In cases where this is not possible, this Grievance Policy will apply.

When issues concerning a potential conflict of interest arise and/or where senior Club Officers are party to the grievance, the Club Secretary will endeavour to ensure an objective party of appropriate level of seniority is in place to hear the grievance.

Please note, in cases of alleged bullying and/or harassment, including alleged sexual harassment and sexual misconduct, the complainant concerned may channel their complaint through the University's Dignity and Respect Policy, where appropriate. If an employee/volunteer wishes to make a disclosure regarding a relevant wrongdoing, the person concerned may direct their disclosure through the University's Protected Disclosures Policy. Please note, the University reserves the right to direct the employee/volunteer to policies and procedures, other than this Grievance Procedure where a resolution is expressly provided for elsewhere within the University.

2. DEFINITIONS

Grievance

A grievance may be defined as a complaint that an employee/volunteer has regarding their terms and conditions of employment, working environment or working relationships. A non-exhaustive list of grievances may include; assignment of duties, terms and conditions of employment, health and safety issues, and/or workplace change.

Grievance Stages Informal Stage

Most grievances are capable of being resolved on an informal basis without recourse to the formal grievance process stages listed in the paragraphs below. Where a grievance arises, the parties concerned are encouraged to understand the other party's position and should seek, as far as possible, a mutually acceptable solution through informal means. Where appropriate, coaches should in the first instance raise the grievance informally and engage in respectful conversation with the Club Secretary to ascertain if a solution can be reached prior to evoking the formal stages of the grievance process.

Formal Stages

Where a grievance remains unresolved following the informal stage of the grievance process, or where a grievance raised is not suitable to be dealt with informally, the grievance may be referred to the formal stages of the process listed below. There are four formal stages of the UCD Sports Club Grievance Process;

a. Formal Stage 1

This is the first step of the formal process of the grievance policy. Typically, where an employee/volunteer has a grievance, under Stage 1, they raise the grievance with their line manager/person assigned to manage.

b. Formal Stage 2

If the grievance cannot be resolved at Stage 1, the grievance may be referred to a more senior manager/officer (Club Captain / President/ Chair) under Stage 2 of the process.

c. Formal Stage 3

If the grievance remains unresolved after Stage 2, or if the grievance relates to remuneration, the grievance may be referred to AUC Executive Secretary. As appropriate, an investigator may be appointed to investigate the grievance. If necessary, this may be an external appointee.

d. Formal Stage 4

If having exhausted the internal resolution mechanisms at Stages 1 to 3, and the grievance remains unresolved, a referral to the Workplace Relations Commission may be made, where applicable.
