

Methodologies of Memory:
Irish Memory Studies Network
Distinguished Lecture Series, Spring 2015

The third lecture series of the Irish Memory Studies Network, on the theme of 'Methodologies of Memory', will be hosted by the Humanities Institute, University College Dublin, February-April 2015.
This series is generously funded by UCD College of Arts and Celtic Studies and the Irish Research Council New Foundations.

February 19 @ 4pm

Professor Ann Rigney

Transnational Memory: Bloody Sunday 1887-2014

March 24 @ 2.30pm

Professor Keith Murphy

The Neurobiology of Memory Encoding

April 7 @ 2.30pm

Dr Fred Cummins

The Folly of the Engram: Considering Individual and Collective Memory

April 14 @ 2.30pm

Professor Danielle Clarke

Memory as Method: The Practice of Memorialisation/Memorisation in Early Modern Women's Poetry

April 21 @ 2.30pm

Dr Naomi McAreavey

Memory and Reconciliation: The 1641 Rebellion in (Northern) Irish History and Memory

April 28 @ 2.30pm

Dr Kate Kenny

Whistleblowing in Banks and the Role of Time

Venue: Seminar Room, Humanities Institute, UCD. All lectures will be podcast and available from the IMSN website:

<http://www.ucd.ie/humanities/research/irishmemorystudiesnetwork/>

To register for the Irish Memory Studies Network mailing list, contact Dr Emilie Pine (Emilie.Pine@ucd.ie).