INTRODUCTION

The Kennedy papers

The papers of Hugh Kennedy were deposited in University College Dublin by his widow, Clare Kennedy. His neice, Mary Semple, a former Deputy Librarian in the College, was instrumental in locating a number of ancillary deposits over the years. Researchers owe a great debt to both Mrs Kennedy and Miss Semple for the completeness of this collection. Without any doubt, the Kennedy papers rank as one of the most important private paper collections for the history of the infant years of the modern Irish state. In view of Kennedy's central role as Law Officer to the Provisional Government and as Attorney General between 1922 and 1924, his papers provide unique insight into the transfer of services to the Irish government, the elaboration of a constitution and the development of the new executive, legislature and judiciary.

The comprehensive nature of this outstanding collection is due in no small way to Kennedy's own awareness of the importance of his papers. He was consistent in preserving both drafts and final copies of letters and memoranda. He had additional copies typed of particularly important documents, often annotated 'le me fein' in his hand, perhaps with a view to publication and research work in his later years. Alas his premature death prevented his personal exploitation of this important source.

Kennedy had a meticulous approach to his papers. On 9 June 1924, when departing from the Office of Attorney General, he wrote three letters. One of these (P4/1203), was to William T. Cosgrave accompanying correspondence of George Gavan Duffys concerning 'the unpleasantness that arose in relation to representatives in Germany', which he requested him to place among the state papers. The other two letters (P4/1215-6), addressed to the Secretary of the Executive Council, accompanied boxes of Executive Council memoranda and Colonial Office despatches respectively, which he felt should be returned to his custody. He also made a conscious decision to deposit his judgments and notes as Chief Justice in the Public Record Office (P4/94). This deposit is unavailable at the moment but details of its content are contained in an appendix to this list (p. 429). Unlike many others, Kennedy never weeded or manipulated his papers as items which could be interpreted as being critical of him prove. For this reason the collection is all the more valuable.

Arrangement of the collection

The arrangement of the papers constituted one of the more time consuming aspects of their processing. Most of Kennedy's papers were never filed, therefore documents of related content were often in scattered locations. Where files existed, they were kept intact. Fortunately, most of his committee papers - Constitution Committee, Judiciary Committee and Second House of the Oireachtas Committee - were filed which probably accounts for their completeness.

The papers were divided into eight main sections. The first of these, A Family and personal, contains items relating to Kennedy's family background and of a personal nature. B Early years and education, and C Early legal career, are short sections but provide a logical and important chronological progression to D Public Office which is the most extensive section. Public Office is divided into twelve sub-sections, DA Anglo-Irish negotiations and the transfer of power and services, DB Provisional Government and the Constitution, DC Provisional Government and Executive Council policy - the North East and Compensation, DD Executive Council, Irish Free State, DE Dail Eireann, DF Courts, judiciary and judicial reorganisation, DG Chief Justice, DH State seals, DJ National heritage, art and theatre, DK American Bar Association / Canadian Bar Association, DL Cumann na nGaedheal. The last four sections, E - H, are consolidated sections in that they contain items which span Kennedy's lifetime. E Correspondence, contains letters which have not been integrated in Section D, or in any other section. Section F contains items relating to Kennedy's publications, research work, papers and commentaries. Section G deals with organisations, societies and social occasions, and finally, section H, contains printed matter not integrated elsewhere in the collection.

Section D, Public Office, is the core of the collection containing Kennedy's papers as Legal Adviser to the Provisional Government, Law Officer to the Provisional Government, Attorney General and Chief Justice. DA, Anglo-Irish negotiations, deals principally with matters leading up to the passage of the Irish Free State (Agreement) Act which was passed on 31 March 1922 giving the Treaty the force of law, regularising the Provisional Government and enabling the British to transfer government functions by orders in council. DB Provisional Government and the Constitution, covers the regularisation of the Provisional Government with its own exchequer and executive, the drafting and passage of the Constitution bill and conferences with the British Government about its provisions. DC consolidates Provisional Government and Executive Council policy on two issues, the North East and the question of compensation. This arrangement serves to underline the continuity of policy on two very contentious matters. To have fragmented the material would not have served the researcher.

DD covers the Executive Council of the Irish Free State established after acceptance of the Constitution and containing material relating to the formation of the Executive, the Ministers and Secretaries Act, 1924, and the functioning of various ministries and offices. It also contains a section dealing with the Dail Eireann funds litigation and a section detailing the application and admission of the Irish Free State to the League of Nations. DE Dail Eireann, covers issues relating to the operation of the legislature and its various procedures including procedure for the first election under the Irish Free State (Agreement) Act, 1922. The contentious issue of the oath of allegiance is documented in this section.

DF Courts, judiciary and judicial reorganisation, is comprehensive in its coverage of the proceedings of the Judiciary Committee, the passage of the Courts of Justice Act, the deliberations of the Rule-Making Authority, the design of judicial robes and the provision of court accommodation including arrangements for the reopening of the courts in the Four Courts. DG contains papers relating to Kennedy's position as Chief Justice consisting mainly of correspondence, including correspondence with the President of the Executive Council, amendments to the Constitution, the Governor General crisis, the International Commission under the Treaty of Conciliation between Roumania and the United States, and the Second House Commission.

Kennedy's devotion to matters of artistic and cultural importance lasted through his public career. For this reason, sections DH State seals and DJ National heritage, art and theatre, are significant. DK American Bar Association / Canadian Bar Association covers Kennedy's membership of these two prestigious organisations and his addresses to them in 1928. The final sub-section, DL, is a short one which contains papers relating to his brief period as an elected representative of Cumann na nGaedheal.

Descriptive practice

Descriptions may appear generally extensive in this list. The reason for this arises from the quality of the collection and the need to ensure that interesting features are not overlooked by researchers. Relatively little material is routine. File titles have been given where subject matter arrangement level headings are not employed. As a matter of policy, the names of months and personal names are automatically translated into English, except where an individual was consistently known by the Irish version of his name.

Cross references have been employed to facilitate comprehensive use of the collection. Inevitably in a collection of this size ghost entries appear (- reference numbers for which no actual documents exist). Abbreviations have been avoided and on the few occasions on which they appear, they can be easily interpreted from their context. Finally, the use of square brackets denotes information which is not contained in the document but which is provided by the archivist.

Biographical summary of Kennedy's life

Hugh Kennedy was born on the 11 July 1879 in Dublin, the eldest son of a surgeon, Hugh Boyle Kennedy, LRCS, CPI Dublin, and Mary

K. Nihill Kennedy. In September 1911 he married Clare Murphy, daughter of a merchant, John Murphy, of Dublin and Liverpool (P4/3).

Kennedy was privately educated until he entered University College Dublin where he received a BĀ in Classics (1899) and a BL (1903) (P4/122-3) awarded by the Royal University of Ireland. At UCD he founded and edited the student magazine, St Stephens (P4/119-121), was secretary, auditor and a debating medallist of the Literary and Historical Debating Society (P4/113-7) and secretary of the Catholic Graduates and Undergraduates Association (P4/118).

A gold medallist of the Kings Inns Debating Society, Kennedy became a member of the Irish Bar in 1902. His papers contain the first brief he held for his master, Richard A. Macnamara (P4/137). He later practised on the Munster circuit. Kennedy was called to the Inner Bar in 1920 and was elected a Bencher of Kings Inns in 1922 (P4/157-8).

Although the foundation of his early political interests is open to speculation, Kennedy was honorary secretary of the Central Branch of the Gaelic League (P4/127-8). He attended the Treaty negotiations in London as Legal Adviser to the Provisional Government and was subsequently involved in the ensuing arrangements to transfer services to it (P4/173-217). From February 1922 to February 1923, Kennedy was Law Officer to the Provisional Government, a member of the committee appointed to draft the Constitution and party to the subsequent negotiations with the British government (P4/352-67).

Kennedy's appointment as Attorney General was approved on 7 December 1922 although he took up the post on 1 March 1923. As Attorney General of the period, Kennedy was in a unique position to exercise wide-ranging functions. He was involved in establishing the executive machinery of the Irish Free State (P4/526-816), in drafting suitable legislative provisions for its operation and in finding solutions or compromises to many central problems, notably the North Eastern situation and the establishment of government and parliament there (P4/377-436), and compensation (P4/437-82).

Kennedy was a member of the committee appointed by the government to organise the judiciary of the Irish Free State (P4/1083-1105) and was later a member of the Rule-Making-Authority convened under section 36 of the Courts of Justice Act (P4/1150-62). In September 1923, Kennedy was among the members of the first delegation from the Irish Free State to the League of Nations when the Free State was admitted at the Fourth Assembly. On that occasion he became a member of the Committee of Jurists on Draft Treaty of Mutual Guarantee (P4/851-935).

On 25 October 1923, Kennedy was elected to Dail Eireann as TD for Dublin City South but resigned his seat when appointed Chief Justice in June 1924 (P4/1388-90, 1399-1404). As Chief Justice he continued his involvement in the development of the new judicial system. He was a central figure in the Governor General crisis in 1932 when he refused to assume the duties of that office on a permanent basis after the resignation of James McNeill (P4/1258-62).

In his later years Kennedy was a joint commissioner of the International Commission under the Treaty of Conciliation between Roumania and the United States in 1931 (P4/1263-5) and chairman of the Second House of the Oireachtas Committee appointed by Eamon de Valera in 1936 (P4/1266-96).

Kennedy was a member of the Royal Irish Academy, Fellow and Vice-President of the Royal Society of Antiquaries of Ireland, Vice-President of the Statistical and Social Inquiry Society of Ireland and a Governor of the National Gallery of Ireland. An honorary member of the American Bar Association and of the Canadian Bar Association, he addressed both their conferences in 1928 (P4/1358-77). He was also a member of the Royal Zoological Society of Ireland, Irish Texts Society, Dublin Drama League, Friends of Irish Art Collections and of the Classical Association of Ireland.

Joint author of The Law of town tenants in Ireland, Kennedy was also author of articles on the Constitution, on judicial reorganisation and provided prefaces for many legal text books, notably for Leo Kohn's The Constitution of the Irish Free State (1932) (P4/1677-1701).

He died suddenly at the age of 57 in the autumn of 1936.

Research potential of the papers

The papers contain little relating to Kennedy's early education which was private until he entered University College Dublin. One letter he received when he was fourteen refers to his 'taste for classics and literature' (P4/96). His university career is better documented. He apparently quarrelled with James Joyce about the latter's views on religion and literature and rejected, as editor of St Stephens, an essay by Joyce which was critical of the works of George Moore and W.B. Yeats. Material relating to St Stephens (P4/119-121) is routine and gives little indication of his opinion of Joyce. His opinion of the religious views of Yeats, and of the literary attributes of Synge, is recorded, but without enthusiasm (P4/131).

His period as secretary, and later as auditor of the Literary and Historical Debating Society is documented by letters received (P4/113-116) although in a relatively predictable manner. Greater evidence of the mind of Kennedy in the early 1900s is supplied by a file on the Catholic Graduates and Undergraduates Association (P4/118). This and other items indicate a strict view of Catholic morality, and more than a little related hostility towards Trinity College Dublin (P4/1236). There are other interesting indications of his views on religious practices (P4/41, 1063) and of his attitude to the churches (P4/319, 349).

His early legal career is not documented in great detail, his correspondence, notes and opinions for this period being fairly sketchy. Letters on various issues from former colleagues give some indication of his standing in the legal community (for example, P4/1672). One theme which does recur throughout his legal material is his concern with the problem of lunatics (P4/148, 1157, 1175, 1222, 1247, 1783).

Equally his entrance into politics is not completely clarified by his papers. Kennedy's arrival at the Treaty negotiations as Legal Adviser appears sudden but his progress thereafter was meteoric. One draft letter, possibly to Michael Collins, refers to the 'ultimate goal of independence which I have kept before me since I led a republican party at University College Dublin twenty four years ago' (P4/387). There is no evidence that he pursued his goal in an aggressive manner by bearing arms in the struggle for independence although he does appear to have been belligerent about the playing of the British anthem at conferrings in UCD, at least verbally.

Apart from his membership of the Gaelic League (P4/127-8), and references to the original principles of Sinn Fein (P4/13) and to a pamphlet on its policy (P4/1806), his early political activities are rather obscure. Even letters he received from Francis Sheehy Skeffington (P4/103-8) and Willie Pearse (P4/112) do not provide any clarification. Kennedy's election as a TD and his membership of Cumann na nGaedheal are sketchily covered (P4/1378-1415). His period as an elected public representative lasted less than one year and culminated in an unhappy controversy about his election agent's overdraft (P4/1412-3). Kennedy's decision to stand in October 1923 was made at the recurring request of William T. Cosgrave (P4/1388-90) and conflicts with views expressed less than three months earlier (P4/1104).

The section of the papers dealing with Anglo-Irish negotiations (P4/173-217) is important in relation to the transfer of power and services to the Provisional Government. It contains nothing on the actual Treaty negotiations and only one item contains a comment possibly on the Treaty debates (P4/199).

Provisional Government and Executive Council policy on the North Eastern counties is well documented by one section (P4/377-436). It, and items in other sections, indicate the overwhelming obsession that existed among Southern politicians and officials with the Northern parliament, the mistrust with which they regarded the intentions of British politicians in relation to the North East (P4/237), and their preoccupation as much with their own interests, as with those of the minority there (P4/566, 632, 805, 854). If anything, the establishment of a parliament and government in Northern Ireland appears to have been considered a greater threat than that posed by the Irregulars who were committed to the destruction of the Provisional and Free State governments. The views of Lord Londonderry provide an interesting balance and unique insight into the Unionist viewpoint (P4/293, 380-3).

The destruction caused by the Civil War and government efforts to defeat the Irregulars feature in a number of sections, notably Kennedy's correspondence with Cosgrave as President of the Executive Council (P4/542-51) and in Irish Free State Army and Defence matters (P4/652-80). Kennedy's personal animosity towards the republican viewpoint is particularly vividly expressed in his comments about Cumann na mBan (P4/548). His personal concern about the destruction of the Four Courts by the Irregulars, the loss of the Public Record Office and efforts to salvage or replace its content, is evident in a number of items (principally P4/283-5). The Dail Eireann funds case in which the Free State, as plaintiff, sought a judgment acknowledging it as the owner of the Sinn Fein funds, is covered by a self-contained section (P4/817-37).

Kennedy's papers as a member of the Constitution Committee are very complete. Apart from committee working papers, they include his own notes on the draft constitution and letters with personal comments on Darrell Figgis by James Douglas (P4/315) and Kennedy (P4/317). Other items include the Roman Catholic hierarchy's view of article 8 of the Constitution (P4/349), letters from Kennedy on the relation between the terms of the Treaty and the Constitution (P4/350-1), and British government criticism of and reaction to the draft constitution (P4/352-67, 1252). In later sections of the papers other documents appear on the Constitution with reference to the implications of various articles (P4/838-42), their interpretation (P4/843-6), and details of amendments to the Constitution in later years when Kennedy was Chief Justice (P4/1249-50). Naturally the papers also contain some of Kennedy's published thoughts on the subject (P4/1680-5).

The section dealing with the Executive Council and the establishment of Irish Free State ministries is extensive. The most completely documented issues include the Ministers and Secretaries Act, 1924 (P4/529-41); the organisation and role of the defence forces including the Defence Forces (Temporary Provisions) bill (P4/664-75); finance matters including salaries and pensions; protection of patents, foreshore and mining rights; the Land Commission, land purchase and related financial liability; the Fisheries bill, 1923; and the functions and position of the Commissioners of Charitable Donations and Bequests (P4/813-6). The policy of the Irish Free State in applying for admission to the League of Nations is fully documented (P4/851-935).

The Dail Eireann section affords interesting insight into the operation of the legislature. Standing orders, finance bill, private bill and divorce bill procedures, and procedure for the first election under the Irish Free State (Agreement) Act are all well documented. This section also contains notes and memoranda by Kennedy on the oath of allegiance (P4/1005-13) and correspondence dealing with efforts to establish a parliamentary library (P4/1014-16). The Second House of the Oireachtas Commission, established by de Valera and chaired by Kennedy, is documented in the collection by a very complete and extensive series of working papers (P4/1266-96).

While Kennedy's papers are a valuable source for the history of the foundation of the executive and legislature of the Irish Free State, they form quite a unique collection for the insight which they provide into the reorganisation of the courts and the judiciary. Kennedy, was, of course, a member of the Judiciary Committee and a member of the Rule-Making Authority convened under the Courts of Justice Act, 1924. As in the case of the other committees on which he sat, his papers for the Judiciary Committee are very complete. They are enhanced by comments and memoranda from members of the judiciary, from the legal profession and legal bodies, and from the public on the report of the Committee, the Courts of Justice bill, and the deliberations of the Rule-Making Authority. In this context the letters of District Justice Louis P. Walsh are particularly noteworthy (P4/1100-5, 1119-29).

This section contains other interesting source material. The controversy over the design of the judicial robes is documented. Kennedy favoured Brehon style robes and he, and other members of the judiciary including Walsh and Francis J. Biggar, disliked wigs. His opinion of wigs even provoked comment in The Morning Post (P4/14). There is extensive correspondence with Charles Shannon, RÅ, and W.B. Yeats in this section about the design of the robes, and a series of paintings by Kitty McCormack of the Dun Emer Guild (P4/1163-9).

Other court issues covered by the papers include the use of Irish in courts, about which Kennedy corresponded with the secretary of the Gaelic League (P4/1170, 1173), and the question of the oath in court about which he corresponded with the Chief Rabbi,

Dr Isaac Herzog (P4/1196, 1237). On both these controversies Kennedy appears to have expounded sound views.

There is little evidence in the papers to elucidate the reasons why Kennedy resigned as Attorney General. There is no doubt that he enjoyed this position both socially and intellectually, and departed from it with reluctance, albeit to preside over an entirely new Irish judicial system. Under his administration the work of the Attorney General's office was carried out meticulously, perhaps too meticulously for his critics.

Kennedy's papers as Chief Justice are not as extensive as those for the period when he was Attorney General. They are nonetheless interesting. He continued to be consulted by Cosgrave when he became Chief Justice (P4/1203-13) and drafted a statement for him on the death of Kevin O'Higgins. His papers also contain correspondence with de Valera at the time of the Governor General crisis in 1932 (P4/1258-62), and correspondence with P.J. Rutledge, Minister for Justice, about the Courts of Justice bill, 1934 (P4/1224-6). As noted his papers as chairman of the Second House Commission in 1936 are very complete. In this context the deposit of his judgments and related notes as Chief Justice in the Public Record Office must be noted as an additional source for this period.

The emphasis which Kennedy placed on national heritage is indicated by the inclusion in the collection of two sections, state seals, which is concerned with their design, and national heritage, art and theatre. The choice of a design for the seals is particularly well documented by correspondence between Kennedy, the designer, A. McGoogan of the National Museum, W.T. Cosgrave and others between 1922 and 1926 (P4/1300-05). There are some pertinent observations on this subject particularly Constantine P. Curran's anticipation of future overseas obsession with ancestry (P4/1306).

The controversy over the Lane bequest is not documented in detail but those letters on the subject which do exist (including one from W.B. Yeats) are useful (P4/1331-3). Other areas which concerned Kennedy included the problem of treasure trove and shortcomings in related legal procedures (P4/1343), the subvention of the Gate Theatre (about which he corresponded with Hilton Edwards) (P4/1346-7), and the siting of Oliver Sheppard's statue of Cuchullain which afforded Kennedy the opportunity to air his reservations about the 'exhibits in mid-O'Connell Street' (P4/1350). One can only speculate as to what his reaction to the monumental addition for the millenium might have been !

One of Kennedy's ambitions (regrettably a victim of his relatively early demise) was the production of a major treatise on the Irish Free State constitution. The careful preservation of his papers has been referred to already in this context. His intention is also substantiated by the number of occasions on which he referred to copyright control over articles he published (P4/1678, 1681) least this should impinge on the later publication of a treatise. Arising from his visit to the American and Canadian Bar Associations, he produced two papers on the subject of the Constitution - 'Character and sources of the Constitution of the Irish Free State' (P4/1370-1) and 'The association of Canada with the Constitution of the Irish Free State' (P4/1372). The former was subsequently published in the American Law Journal (P4/1683). His other important contribution to studies of the Constitution took the form of extensive advice to Dr Leo Kohn for his Verfassung des Irischen Freistaats (1928) (P4/1695) - a work he valued greatly - and the provision of a preface for its English edition (P4/1696). The second area where his writing is significant is in the context of the judicial reorganisation to which he was party and his subsequent publication of articles on this subject for the Law Journal (P4/1689-91).

The correspondence section, E, merits close consultation. It contains relatively informal letters which would not integrate with section D including letters from Michael Corrigan, William T. Cosgrave, George Gavan Duffy, Alice Stopford Green, Crompton Llewelyn Davies, Lionel Curtis, Sir Francis Greer, E.J. Phelan, John A. Costello and Thomas Bodkin among others (P4/1417-95). Possibly the most interesting items in this section are the uniquely exuberant and unguarded letters of Hazel, Lady Lavery (P4/1429-37) and the highly colourful and dramatic accounts of Africa by Hal Blackhall (P4/1459-61).

Other sections in the correspondence cast insight into the problems of victims of the Civil War—from the Anglo-Irish landowners attempting to survive in a hostile environment and in the face of unfair land legislation, to its more political and criminal element (P4/1496-1522). The Earl of Granard's letters are numerous (P4/1496). Letters also raise legislative and national issues with Kennedy, usually as a friend and colleague, rather than in an official capacity. There are interesting ideas for the reconstruction of Dublin (P4/1529) and some explicit observations on moneylending (P4/1538) and on tenants' rights (P4/1547). Part of the correspondence (P4/1552-99) deals with compensation claim difficulties, people seeking positions or jobs and facing hardship. It includes extensive correspondence with Captain the Hon. J.M. French, J. Clerc Sheridan of South Africa and Dr Conn Murphy. Interesting comments are made in the letters of Morgan P. Jagers about Australian reaction to the new Irish state (P4/1554-7). The remaining sections of correspondence are fairly routine but contain at least one good example of the petulant Kennedy tone (in a letter to Kevin O'Higgins) (P4/1604).

Apart from their obvious value as a source for the foundation years of the Irish Free State, its constitutional development and the establishment of its executive, legislature and judiciary, another facet of the papers worth considering is the relationship which Kennedy enjoyed with William T. Cosgrave. As no collection of Cosgrave's papers is readily available to researchers, Kennedy's papers assume an important role as an Ersatz source for the first President of the Executive Council. Kennedy appears as friend, confidant and adviser to Cosgrave from his appointment as Acting Chairman of the Provisional Government until the end of his Presidency of the Executive Council. In this context he drafted many letters and statements for Cosgrave on a variety of issues: the appointment of the Duke of Devonshire as Secretary of State for the Colonies (P4/183), condemnation of the Irregulars (P4/254, 545), homage to Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins (P4/294), convening of the Boundary Commission (P4/413), the problems and achievements of the Irish Free State (P4/546), registration of the Anglo-Irish Treaty at the League of Nations (P4/879) and the death of Kevin O'Higgins (P4/1212).

Kennedy corresponded with Cosgrave on an equally wide variety of subjects including the draft constitution (P4/317), the terms of reference of the Compensation Commission (P4/449), the Defence Forces (Temporary Provisions) bill (P4/671), finance bill procedure in the Senate (P4/986), procedure for the opening of the Oireachtas by the Governor General (P4/1036-7), the design of judicial robes (P4/1167-8) and medical council and registration (P4/1208). Less formal letters also exist (P4/1420-7). Thus the papers of Kennedy contain insight into the mind of Cosgrave, particularly through the latter's letters to Kennedy whom he occasionally and affectionately addressed as 'the Brehon' or 'A cara dhil'.

Although the number of letters from Michael Collins in the collection are relatively few in comparison with those of Cosgrave, they are, nevertheless, indicative of his uncompromising views and robust style of expression on the North East and the British Government (P4/237, 259, 377). In this context the letters of Lord Londonderry are particularly useful (P4/293, 381-2). The papers also contain a memorandum by Collins on army reorganisation (P4/250).

It would be impossible to do any more than mention other politicians, officials and members of the judiciary whose work and expressions of opinion are also served by the collection. These include John A. Costello, Kevin O'Shiel, Arthur V. Matheson, Michael Mac White, E.J. Phelan, Louis P. Walsh, James C. Meredith, Gerald Horan, Arthur C. Meredith, Henry Hanna, James Douglas, Lord Glenavy, Darrell Figgis, Patrick Hogan, Kevin O'Higgins, J.P. Walshe, Gordon Campbell, Henry Friel, Joseph Brennan among many others.

One aspect of the collection worthy of consideration is the relationship which Kennedy, and other Irish officials, had with British politicians and civil servants. Kennedy was capable of taking a strong stance with his British counterparts on many issues and left them in little doubt as to his views. His letters to the Secretary of State for the Colonies, Winston Churchill, on the subject of the Ulster month, the Local Government (Northern Ireland) bill, and the Compensation (Ireland) Commission constitute such examples (P4/178, 180, 456). Mark Sturgis, Secretary of the Provisional Government Committee of the Cabinet, also received a strongly worded volley from Kennedy when he inquired about the progress of the Compensation Commission (P4/444). The views which Kennedy expressed to Conor A. Maguire, Attorney General, are resonant with rage at Lord Hewart's criticism of the draft constitution fourteen years after he expressed those views (P4/352, 363, 1252). If Kennedy's comments to Cosgrave on British justice and the Treasury were hardly complimentary (P4/449), he was also capable of acknowledging fair play where it existed (P4/516), and of expressing admiration for individuals who impressed him (P4/1211).

Kennedy's relationship with other officials was obviously good and their communications of positive effect. In particular Francis N. Greer of the Irish Office (who addressed Kennedy as A Chara) and Sir Frederick Liddell of the Office of Parliamentary Counsel could correspond with Kennedy without any acrimonious exchange. He was not the only Irish official who expressed his feelings with vigour. M.J. Ryan, Compensation (Ireland) Commission, with an indictment of the Treasury (P4/460), D. O hEigeartaigh on British government policy and the protection of Catholics in the North East (P4/179), and Michael Mac White on British attitudes at the League of Nations (P4/887), are all explicit in their views.

Kennedy's relations with Irish civil servants were also revealing as shown in a letter from Joseph Brennan, Secretary, Ministry of Finance, complaining about changes made by Kennedy in the wording of a bill (P4/738). Kevin O'Higgins felt it necessary to intervene in Kennedy's relations with the Secretary of the Ministry of Home Affairs, Henry Friel (P4/760). Nevertheless, comments about individuals, if not always complimentary, are often amusing and delightfully unguarded as demonstrated by those of Kennedy and Louis P. Walsh about Lord Glenavy (P4/1125-7), or those of Thomas Bodkin on C.J. Gregg and the Board of the Commissioners of Charitable Donations and Bequests (P4/815). It is some indication of Kennedy's personality that his view of de Valera did not hinder his ability to communicate with him when he became President of the Executive Council.

Areas which now command research scrutiny such as economic policy, industrial relations or womens' issues, not constituting matters of central concern in the early years of the Irish Free State, are not served well by the collection, with the possible exception of womens' issues. Some items of note in this respect include the comments of the Irish Women Citizens Association on the Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 1885 (P4/770), observations of Louie Bennett, Secretary, Irish Women Workers Union on the judicial system (P4/1091), and a memorandum from the Joint Committee of Womens Societies and Social Workers concerning the tendency in legislation in the Irish Free State to take from women their position of equality under the Constitution (P4/1273).

On a personal level, Kennedy's papers indicate many aspects of his personality. While his diaries consist mainly of agendas and aide-memoire, the series contains one detailed but incomplete diary for 1929 (P4/41). It is vivid of his opinions on art, wine, religion and on a host of other matters. His personal accounts, although fragmented, are often amusing such as his correspondence with the District Manager of the Post Office concerning the quality of his telephone service (P4/49), and often indicative of a fastidious mind such as the records of his four cows (P4/53). While there is evidence of frequent and sometimes impatient pleading with him to expedite both his legal and official commitments, his drafting of documents demonstrates meticulous consideration of detail. His reply on the subject of delays to an irate Cosgrave conveys his decision to generate speed by being 'less accessible and agreeable to all and sundry' (P4/588). Unlike most mortals, Kennedy made no attempt to expurgate references from his papers which were personal.

As a collection the Kennedy papers are undoubtedly a unique source. Their research value is further enhanced by Kennedy's skillful prose. In this respect his letters rival those of Timothy Michael Healy. His ideas are always expressed with impact, sometimes acerbic, occasionally satirical, frequently passionate, but always with style. His neat calligraphy presents few problems of interpretation to the researcher.

A FAMILY AND PERSONAL

I KENNEDY FAMILY [1851] - 1911

- 1 [1851] Certified copy of part of the 1851 census return for the townland of Kilclooneybeg in Inniskeel; Boyleagh, county Donegal giving details of the Kenedy (sic) family.
- 2 Handbill issued by the Rotunda Ward Ratepayers' Association announcing its candidates for the Corporation election which include Hugh B. Kennedy.
- 3 July-Sept 1911 Cuttings from The Irish Times and Irish Society and Social Revival announcing the marriage of Hugh Kennedy and Clare Murphy. 2 items.

II FAMILY AND RELATED LETTERS 1903 - 24

- 4 Five letters to Hugh Kennedy from Philip A. Kennedy (architect) in Melbourne, Australia, mainly containing family news, references to his health and inquiries about Kennedy's career.
- 4 23 Sept 1903 Includes comment on the visit of the King to Dublin. 'I was delighted to see ... that there was nothing of a disloyal character ... your countrymen and women covered themselves in glory.' 4 pp
- 5 2 Oct 1903 Includes reference with passion and contempt to some acquaintance - 'that black guard Clarke of Frederick St.' who wrote him another 'cringing howling' letter ... 'to think that my poor father RIP suffered the indignity of prison for countrymen of his calibre. It makes me squirm and hunger for only one hit under his belt ...' 4 pp
- 6 25 Nov 1903 Includes references to Australian newspapers and to his acquisition of an 'oxydonor' to help his lameness and to the unfortunate consequences of experimenting its use on the family cat. 3 pp

- 7 16 Dec 1903 Includes more references to Clarke whom he shocked 'with some Australian slang' and to the King's visit to Dublin. 3 pp
- 8 11 May 1904 Includes discussion of Australian politicians. 1 p
- 9 11 July 1922 Postcard of the Four Courts sent to Kennedy by his mother and father wishing him a happy birthday.
- 10 25 May 1923 Letter from George Lynch (solicitor), Carrick on Shannon, county Leitrim, to Kennedy sympathising with him on the death of his father. 1 p
- 11 12 [July] 1923 Letter from Mrs M.K. Kennedy (Kennedy's mother) to Clare Kennedy (Kennedy's wife) recording her hope that 'he may find a minute for his poor mother one day soon'. 1 p
- 12 4 Aug 1923 Copy personal letter from Kennedy to Hugh Kennedy of Parnell St., Dublin, thanking him for his subscription to the Cumann na nGaedheal election fund. 'I have sometimes wondered whether my work has had any reactions on you ...' 1 p
- 13 24 Sept 1923 Copy letter from Kennedy to his mother expressing his concern at the pressure being brought to bear by the Sinn Fein party on the filling of the office of state solicitor in Clare. He describes one of the party's original principles as 'the eradication of the horrible system of jobbery' which had constituted a 'feature of the late Irish Parliamentary Party'. He concludes by referring to the government's efforts to create machinery which will save 'people like me from continual persecution by the friends of those who are seeking offices of profit'. 1 p
- 14 1923 Letter to Kennedy from his sister, Mary, enclosing an article from The Morning Post describing Kennedy as the "Fat Boy of Peckham" and referring to his reservations about the use of wigs. 'This frightful monstrosity, declares our legal Beau Brunnell, will have to go' and noting the comment of a Dublin lawyer "'...we are used to swelled heads in Ireland ... but the trouble with Kennedy is that he is swelled up all over"'. Kennedy's sister suggests that 'a dip in the Liffey might alter [the author's] tune'. 2 items.

- 25 7 Dec 1925 Letter to Kennedy from Henry Friel, Secretary, Department of Justice, requesting evidence of the date of Kennedy's birth for the Minister of Justice under section 12 of the Courts of Justice Act (1924) 1 p

9 Nov 1929 comments on the death of R. A. Macnamara - 'After my father I owe most of my success in life to [him]'.

11 Nov 1929 notes 'M D. called on me to ask my assist[an]ce in gett[in]g Master Macnamara's post. I was rude [and] told him that his request was ghoulish [and] offended my sense of decency'.

13 Nov 1929 refers to a press report of his toast at the annual dinner of the Chartered Accountants of Ireland - 'After dinner speak[in]g is to me nothing but ashes in the mouth (to say noth[in]g of pain in the tummy)'.

14 Nov 1929 comments 'Veuve Cliq[uot] 1921 (worth noting) ... Cliquot 1920 which I had a few nights ago is a bad wine'.

17 Nov 1929 refers to a case involving a Protestant barrister and a Protestant judge and comments on the question of religious affiliation with particular reference to Catholic attitudes to Protestant social ascendancy. ... 'there are many Catholics of the elder generat[io]n into whose souls the iron has so entered that they cannot believe the facts and still offer homage to the broken idol of their social aspirations. There are maggots in a corpse'.

18 Nov 1929 mentions the death of T P. O'Connor, MP, whom he saw in the lobby of the House of Commons and recalls that on that occasion, O'Connor turned down a request from [Alfred] Cope to meet Kennedy, saying, "No, no, he might insult me". Refers to the attitude of members of the Irish Parliamentary Party to those associated with Sinn Fein and discusses O'Connor as an orator and journalist - 'Characteristic I fear of Connaught slaves'.

20 Nov 1929 comments further on The Catholic Pictorial and the 'evil of gutter Catholic journalism nagg[in]g ineffectively [at] our Protestant fellow-countrymen'.

24 Nov 1929 refers to the death of Georges Clemenceau - 'His fame or notoriety was ... largely founded on his cynicism [and] oddities plus his inveterate hatred of Germany'.

27 Nov 1929 complains about the quality of press reporting of court matters. Also comments on the work of Mainie Jellett. The works 'are capable of pleas[in]g the senses but emptied of mean[in]g save decorative gratificat[io]n, there is noth[in]g more to them'.

29 Nov 1929 refers to the trials of a judge on social occasions arising out of avoiding people at the Peamount Sanatorium dance who wished to talk business to him. ... 'part of the punishment one takes for the considerable stipend'.

10 Dec 1929 refers to Hanna's 'persistent interrupt[io]n of Counsel'.

11 Dec 1929 comments 'J.A. [Costello] ... has done wonderful work'.

12 Dec 1929 describes Harry Clarks's drawings as 'infused with a diseased mentality ... a mortal sin of craftsmanship ... the bathos of mere obscenity'.

P4/

POWER AND SERVICES

I CORRESPONDENCE

i Prime Minister Dec 1921-June 1922

- 173 13 Dec 1921 Anglo-Irish Treaty. Circular copy of letter from D. Lloyd George, Prime Minister, to Arthur Griffith, President of the Dail, clarifying points not specifically covered by the Anglo-Irish Treaty including the appointment of the Governor General, the status of the Irish Free State and Ireland's liability for a share of war pensions and public debt. Notes that the establishment of a second chamber in the legislature is at the discretion of the Irish people. 1p
- 174 22 June 1922 Irregulars. Copy of confidential letter from Lloyd George to Michael Collins, Chairman, Provisional Government, strongly urging action against the Irregulars 'in open rebellion in the heart of Dublin in possession of the Courts of Justice' and noting that reticence in so doing would be in 'defiance of the principles of the Treaty as incompatible with its faithful execution'. 1p

ii Assistant Under Secretary
Aug-Oct 1922

- 175 31 July - 23 Aug 1922 Ulster King of Arms: transfer of records. Copy of minute by Alfred W. Cope, Assistant Under Secretary, stating that the only records in the Office of the Ulster King of Arms related to heraldic and genealogical affairs, records of the Vice Regal Court and Order of St Patrick, 'none of which relate to any of the powers and services transferred to the Provisional Government by Order in Council'. He points out that 'Ulster ... is not engaged in the administration of any public office ...'

P4/

- 175 cont. - Covering letter from Domhnall Ó Suilleabhain to Kennedy requesting him to inform Cope if there had been agreement between the governments on the transfer of records from the Ulster King of Arms.
- Letter from Kennedy to Ó Suilleabhain informing him that Cope 'is wholly misinformed as to the arrangement come to at the London conference', urging the Minister of Home Affairs to ensure the records are protected and not removed from Ireland, explaining the nature of the discussion between the two governments on the matter and concluding that it was not relevant to the 'transfer or non-transfer of functions. This was a definite and specific agreement, and no attempt to alter the decision can be countenanced.' 3 items
- 176 5 - 25 Aug 1922 Royal Irish Constabulary: disbandment.
Letter from Cope to Kennedy requesting his approval of a notice for the Gazette concerning disbandment of the RIC and enclosing two typescript copies of the notice disbanding the force under the Constabulary (Ireland) Act, 1922. One copy contains a pencilled annotation by Kennedy - 'Blythe approves'. 3 items.

Northern Ireland: elections. Copy letter with MS amendments by Kennedy to Churchill in which he objects to the Local Government (Northern Ireland) Bill passed by the Northern parliament to repeal the Local Government (Ireland) Act of 1919. He stresses the responsibility of the British government in a matter which the North regards as a domestic issue but which he interprets as a political one. The gerrymandering effects of the new legislation are described, particularly in relation to counties Tyrone and Fermanagh, which will be painted 'with a deep Orange tint in anticipation of the operation of the "Ulster Month" and the Boundary Commission'. 7 pp

Kennedy from Sir Frederick Liddell, Office of the Parliamentary Counsel to the Treasury, concerning a proposed order in council resulting from the Transfer of Functions Order, to separate the Irish system of health insurance from the system which had previously existed for the whole of the United Kingdom. Liddell deals with an objection lodged by the Provisional Government to such an order in council and outlines in detail why such an order is necessary to protect the rights and liabilities of the insurance societies and the members of societies affected by the change of administration. 3 pp
- 193 Oct-Nov 1922 Patents, trademarks and designs. Letter
See also to Kennedy from Liddell enclosing a P4/263,486,778 memorandum on patents, trademarks and 1544 designs, noting the difficulty of establishing a patent office in Dublin and suggesting that the Patent Office in London act as an agent for the Irish government until a suitable policy had been formulated.
- Copy of memorandum by W. Temple Franks, Comptroller General of Patents, Designs and Trademarks, entitled 'The Free State of Ireland and industrial property legislation'. Refers to the existing legal basis for the registration of trademarks, patents and designs and to the amendments necessary in view of the establishment of the Irish Free State. Also notes the position of the IFS under the Copyright Act, 1911. 2 items

- 235 21 Feb 1922 Pensions. Letter to Kennedy from G. McCann, Office of the Chairman, Provisional Government, acknowledging a memorandum by Kennedy on the subject of pensions and noting that the Chairman would consider it 'when things get more settled'. 1p
- 236 21 May 1922 Formation of the Irish Free State Parliament and the North East. Copy letter from Kennedy to Michael Collins, Chairman, Provisional Government, emphasising that under the Treaty, the Provisional Government was the only government with authority until the parliament and government of the Irish Free State had been established, which would occur once the Constitution had been adopted by the Provisional Parliament which was shortly to be elected. Notes that a 'coalition Provisional Government consisting

- Copy of letter to Brennan from T. Chadwick, Treasury, clarifying points about the procedure and the necessary legislation. 2 items
- 245 27-9 Sept 1922 Irregulars and peace. MS draft and copy of letter from E.P. Culverwell, Registrar, Trinity College Dublin, to Cosgrave, outlining a suggestion which might form the basis of peace. The basis would take the form of an undertaking by the Provisional Government that if the Treaty was violated by the King's veto being used in domestic legislation against the advice of his Irish ministers, then the Provisional Government would resist such action by force if necessary. He describes the King's veto as the 'chief objection' made to him by Eamon de Valera and Erskine Childers in relation to surrendering their arms.
- MS draft and copy of memorandum by Culverwell describing the background to his proposal and de Valera's preoccupation with the oath and the clauses in the Treaty and the Constitution governing the relationship between the Crown and the Irish Free State, his fear that the constitutional usage of Canada would not be followed and that the King would use his veto against Irish legislation. Concludes that the Republicans would accept the Treaty if the IFS could guarantee that the veto would not be used and that the British Government would not object to a declaration which would simply reinforce the terms of the Treaty.
- Confidential MS letter from Culverwell to Kennedy describing a conversation with [Thomas ?] Johnston who doubted that the Provisional Government would adopt the suggestion outlined by Culverwell in his letter to Cosgrave.
- MS letter from Culverwell to Kennedy clarifying points about his suggestion which he denies is an 'offer' by the Government. 'It is only a suggestion that each side should on its part do a certain thing - on their side, a surrender; on yours, a binding statement which w[oul]d make their surrender easier ...'

Mentions in a postscript that Johnston had suggested obtaining a declaration from the Government by asking a question in the Dail but he feels that 'the labour members should not be allowed to get the credit of it'.

- Copy of letter from Culverwell to de Valera asking the Irregulars to relinquish their military opposition to the Treaty. He discusses the various points about which the Irregulars were concerned. Postscript notes that the suggestion was his own and in conclusion he compares opposition to possible British interference with the veto with the 'untold moral injury to many of the rank and file on either side' by many of the instances of the war. 7 items

cb Acting Chairman and Chairman, Provisional Government Aug 1922-Jan 1923

- 317 Aug 1922-Jan 1923 Correspondence between Kennedy and William T. Cosgrave, Acting Chairman and Chairman, Provisional Government, concerning the drafting of the constitution. Includes letter from Cosgrave criticising the plan by Figgis to publish a book of constitutions including the Irish constitution. He feels this would prevent members of the Dail discussing the new constitution 'on a high level' and observes that it will be published without an introduction 'which must necessarily be coloured by the Acting Chairman of the Constitution Committee bearing in mind his opposition to the draft on which the Government worked' (20 Aug 1922); reply from Kennedy urging the publication of a companion volume. 'The Government could relieve itself of responsibility for the statements by publishing the volume as an explanatory work of introduction to the study of the different Constitutions prepared at the Government's request by the Deputy Chairman and the Secretaries of the Constitution Committee' (22 Aug 1922); other letters commenting on Figgis and his work including one by Kennedy noting 'He puts up a pseudo-literary, semi journalistic screed - largely in bad English' (16 Jan 1923); copy letter, marked strictly confidential, from Kennedy, referring to documents he was sending the Chairman containing notes on meetings in London concerning the draft constitution and headings of agreements reached concerning the constitution between southern unionists, Arthur Griffith, Kevin O'Higgins and Kennedy (5 Sept 1922); copy letter from Kennedy declining the services of Michael F. I THE NORTH EAST

i Relations between the North East and the Provisional Government May-Aug 1922

- 377 4-5 May 1922 Copies of minute from Michael Collins, Chairman, Provisional Government, to Fionan Lynch, Minister for Education, Provisional Government and to Eamon Duggan, Minister for Home Affairs, asking them to have 'experts' prepare memoranda on the powers of the Northern parliament under the Government of Ireland Act (1920) and on a scheme for 'non-cooperation in every possible way with the Northern Parliament. And in addition, a scheme towards making it impossible for them to carry on'. Suggests approaching Kennedy on the subject. Forwarded to Kennedy by Lynch with the suggestion that T.J. Morrissey would be a possible author and by Duggan seeking ideas. 3 items
- 378 [1922] Copy extract from a lengthy memorandum by Kennedy concerning the hypothetical position of members elected to the Northern parliament sitting in Dail Eireann. Kennedy outlines the constitutional position of the Northern parliament and the sovereignty of Dail Eireann to which elections are about to take place. He points out that in the event of the Northern parliament voting to become part of the Irish Free State, that it would be a violation of the Treaty to transfer members elected to 'Sir James Craig's inferior body' to Dail Eireann, but that it would be valid for those representatives of the North East in Westminster to sit as equals in the Dail. 5 pp

- 379 16 May 1922 Copy of letter from Collins to Duggan asking him if there were any points to be raised at the London conference arising out of his department's relationship with the Northern Ireland government. Forwarded by Duggan to Kennedy to see if he could think of any problems from a legal viewpoint. 1p
- 380 [July/Aug 1922] Lengthy MS minute by William T. Cosgrave [Acting Chairman, Provisional Government], concerning a meeting with 'L.D.' [Londonderry?], an acquaintance of Carsons and Craigs, and his proposals for a formula by which the North and South might be brought together. These included 'Northern party to get full representation in the Dail and Senate in principle subject to the constitution and then he spoke of uniting the Judiciary'. He also suggested that the Duke of Abercorn should be governor general and described the composition of a temporary 'legal Council' to rule the country for five years. 1p

- 381 5 Aug 1922 Copy of letter [possible written by Charles Stewart Henry Vane-Tempest-Stewart, 7th Marquess of Londonderry] from Mountstewart, Newtownards, county Down [Londonderry seat], to [a member of the Provisional Government] concerning the fallacy of establishing a government in Southern Ireland. Criticises Michael Collins' inability to deal with the Civil War, rejects any suggestion that the position of the Roman Catholics in the North should be used to justify establishing a new state and describing the impracticalities of the latter - 'a tiny island, speaking a language which no one understands, self-centred, proud and unduly sensitive'. 3 pp

Concludes by noting that if he does not accept partition, his attitude will 'simply drive ... the Six Counties into irreconcilable opposition'. 3 pp
- 383 22 Aug 1922 Copy of letter from [Londonderry] denying that he will visit Dublin or go to A[rthur] G[riffith's] funeral because he resents 'the flouting and insulting of everything British, and the government in the hands of people who for generations have atrophied the quality of when it would be advantageous from the Free State viewpoint, and two memoranda on Monseigneur Luzio's campaign for a settlement with the Irregulars and on Lord Glenavy's letter to Sir James Craig in the context of the North Eastern situation. Includes memoranda by B.C. Waller on procedure of the Boundary Commission and on European precedents for the NEBB; report by Joseph Johnston, Adviser to the NEBB on Regional Economics, on Derry; reports by Hugh McCartan on Pettigo, Derry and Belfast and on South and East county Down and Newry; report by Macnaghten on the situation in Pettigo, county Donegal, since the Free State troops took over from the British military forces, noting the good relations being engendered among Unionists in the area -

'... if all the towns along the border were in as peaceful and harmonious a condition as Pettigo ... it would probably be universally said as it has been said by an erstwhile Orangeman ...
"we desire more and not less Free State administration" '. 134 pp

- 420 Sept 1924 Copy typescript memorandum by Kennedy for Cosgrave on the proposal. Stresses the need for the Free State government to preempt a British proposal on Northern Ireland with one of its own and stresses what its nature should be. Criticises the type of all-Ireland parliament suggested in the proposal on which he is commenting because it would reduce the status of the Oireachtas and raise the status of the Northern Ireland parliament. Discusses the type of policy they should enunciate in relation to the parliament of Northern Ireland. Emphasises that its recognition would have to be subject to the restoration of democratic franchise to the minority there. Lists the guarantees the people of Northern Ireland would require if an all-Ireland parliament existed and describes its composition. Mentions that the Commissioners had informally approved the appointment of Ryan and Terry as joint secretaries. Describes evidence indicating that the Treasury hoped that Terry alone would be made secretary. Continues with a lengthy condemnation of Treasury attitude to the Commission in general and of Waterfield in particular. Cites another instance in which the Treasury made decisions about the Commission without any reference to either C.J. Gregg, Ministry for Finance or to the Provisional Government. ... 'his [Waterfield] attitude was a continual source of annoyance to the Commission, particularly in the matter of staff, and his high handed action on one occasion created considerable friction ... Gregg there and then informed Mr Waterfield that he was treating the Provisional Government like a Department in Whitehall ... It is most inconvenient and humiliating for the members of the Commission to have to approach Mr Waterfield ... almost cap in hand, for sanction for the employment of a Junior Clerk or Telephone boy.' Includes copies of correspondence between the Admiralty Office in London and Michael Comyn, KC, seeking compensation for the loss of the firm Shamrock Fertilizers as a result of coastguard action in dismantling a motor tug (1921-2); letter from T. Barker, Secretary, Irish Claims Compensation Association, enclosing his association's criticism of the Damage to Property (Compensation) bill. The memorandum refers to the 'malignity' of the bill from the 'loyalist' viewpoint. 'As is well known the chief sufferers from the injuries committed to persons and property in Ireland were the loyalists there. They suffered solely by reason of their loyalty to and friendship for the United Kingdom and the British Empire.' The act is interpreted as an attempt to make loyalist compensation claims virtually impossible. 'The principle of the Bill from the point of view of the Irish Loyalist is therefore so utterly unsound and malicious that no amendments ... would tend to rectify it.'; Letter from Justice Daniel F. Colahan to Kennedy asking him to investigate the compensation claim of Cornelius Sullivan whose son was killed by an Army car. Correspondence between Greer and Kennedy concerning the provisions and passage of the Irish sailors and soldiers land bill. Greer notes the difficulties of ensuring its suitability so that the Treasury could certify its provisions as sufficient under the Consequential Provisions Act and so that the Dail would find it acceptable. The bill's 'attractive' feature would be the 'expenditure of ... British money in the Free State in providing cottages and allotments'. Greer also points out that his draft is based on its Northern counterpart; typescript draft of the bill with MS amendments by Greer. 9 pp

'The Despatch was received from the Colonial Office on 12th February 1923 and they have since issued fifteen reminders asking for reply.' Contains Kennedy's draft reply in shorthand; copy reply from Kennedy assuring Banim that the legislation is in draft form but that the matter has been complicated by the interest of the Minister of Home Affairs in 'allied subjects'. 2 pp
- 588 April-May 1924 Irate letter from Cosgrave to Kennedy regarding the delay of his office in dealing with despatches some of which he regards as important. He is concerned because 'many of these appear to have lain in your office for over a year without attention' and notes that in one case seventeen reminders were sent to Kennedy. He suggests that something is seriously wrong in the administration of his office. Attaches a schedule of despatches from the Colonial Office which have been 'unduly delayed'; MS draft and typescript copy of Kennedy's reply to Cosgrave marked 'personal' in which he details the procedure he has had to employ in dealing with many of the despatches. He describes decisions made in his office as 'a matter of a personal ruling by me, and not the mere initialling of a Civil Service file' and concludes that to improve future performance he shall be less 'accessible and agreeable to all and sundry'. 19 pp

Correspondence mainly between Kennedy and Kevin O'Sheil, Assistant Legal Adviser, concerning the Manchester Guardian's reconstruction number on Ireland. Includes copy of letter from A.P. Wadsworth, Manchester Guardian, to O'Sheil concerning the title to be given the supplement. Wadsworth argues that a general title will mean that industries in Northern Ireland can be included in the supplement but that a title incorporating the name of the Irish Free State would exclude Northern Ireland from participation and result in a loss of advertisement revenue; letter from O'Sheil to Kennedy in which he notes that there is no possibility of 'North-Eastern stuff' overshadowing Free State 'exhibits' and suggests including an occasional short article on the North 'by way of sweetening the pill'; circular letters from O'Sheil for members of the Executive Council with details of content; confidential letter from O'Shiel to the President suggesting he send a personal letter of thanks to Charles P. Scott, editor of the Manchester Guardian. Scott, he feels, deserves special thanks for his production of supplements dealing with the resources of Ireland and its economic and commercial possibilities at terms which were very favourable to the Irish government. He points out that the cost of publication had barely been recouped by the Manchester Guardian and that the Irish government was benefitting from international exposure. Encloses draft letter of thanks for the President to Scott; letter from O'Shiel to Kennedy thanking him for the tribute he paid to the Manchester Guardian but regretting that the Government had made no official recognition of its work; correspondence between O'Shiel and Kennedy concerning despatch of issues to Morgan Jaqueurs in Australia. O'Shiel remarks on the favourable reaction he found in London to the Irish administration 'in marked contrast to the note of doubt and gloom and thinly concealed contempt which was the prevailing note during my last visit'. Cope had attributed this reaction to the Manchester Guardian supplements. O'Sheil praises Scott as 'one of our very best friends in Great Britain' and refers to his courage in printing the supplements although the majority of the Guardian's directors were loathe to do so (28 June 1923). 14 pp

- 775 12 April 1924 District Justices. Copy letter from Kennedy to the Minister of Home Affairs criticising the tendency among some district justices to canvass for jobs for friends, complaining about one in particular, and drawing attention to the fact that he had even engaged in newspaper correspondence on another matter. He urges O'Higgins to communicate with district justices about the undesirability of such activities. 2 pp
- 776 6-12 May 1924 Roger Casement. Letter from O'Higgins to Kennedy concerning proposed publication of an article [by the former English public executioner] on Roger Casement. Senator James Douglas had suggested suppression of the newspaper concerned unless the article was withdrawn and O'Higgins solicits Kennedy's views; copy of letter from Kennedy to O'Higgins informing that the newspaper could not be suppressed but suggesting that the matter be taken up with the British Government. 'It seems to me that they ought to have some control over the publication by their retired civil servants of matters of information collected by them in the course of their employment.' 2 pp

P4/193, 263, 486 Secretary, Ministry of Education, to Kennedy, enclosing copy of a letter from Dr Hugh Ryan, Professor of Chemistry at University College Dublin, concerning the discovery by a research student, James Drumm, of a method of 'converting naturally occurring organic substances ... into dyes' and his position with regard to the patenting of the discovery.
- Letter from Gordon Campbell, Secretary, Ministry of Industry and Commerce to Kennedy concerning the need for legislation on patents, trademarks and designs. Suggests simplification of the British procedure with regard to patent registration and inclusion of a clause to enable the Minister to reject trademarks and designs of an Irish character for goods not 'produced or manufactured substantially in Ireland'. Notes the difficulties which may arise with patents issued by the British Patent Office.
- Memorandum with MS amendments by Senator [William] Barrington, [Institute of Civil Engineers], about the establishment of a patent office, emphasising the need for strictness in its investigation procedures, its value to the state in terms of revenue and suggesting a lengthier period of patent validity than is the practice in Britain. 9 pp
- 779 5-6 May 1924 Registration of Business Names.
Letter to Kennedy from Richard Mulcahy, TD, referring to malpractice in the registration of business names and quoting from a letter he received on the subject. His correspondent complains about 'adventurers, especially Jews, ... opening up business under Irish names, ... hiding their identity...'; copy letter of acknowledgment from Kennedy and copy letter from Kennedy to Patrick McGilligan, Minister of Industry and Commerce, pointing out his department's responsibility in the enforcement of the Registration of Business Names Act. 3 pp

- 786 Dec 1922-June 1923 Land Commission; transfer of services, land purchase and related financial liability. Letters from Patrick Hogan, Minister of Agriculture, to Kennedy concerning the Land Commission and related matters. Includes memorandum on the Land Bill, 1920, detailing its purpose with reference to compulsory purchase, the role of the Congested Districts Board and the Estate Commissioners and the present effects of the Bill (Dec 1922); memorandum concerning pending sales by the Commission and the Congested Districts Board with particular reference to the difficulties of financing the sales and the role of the Treasury in the sales to date; memorandum on land seizure which notes 'landlords on their part are in the mood to take very moderate terms ... land purchase must be completed by law and not by force' (Dec 1922); memorandum concerning excess and bonus Commission stock in which Hogan notes conclusions reached at a meeting of the Cabinet Committee on Irish Affairs. Emphasises the need to contend that the 'Transfer Order does not impose any liability on us in this connection' and refers to the transfer of the administration of Land Commission services (Jan 1923); typescript copy and MS draft reply from Kennedy to Hogan detailing the position of the Provisional Government under the Transfer of Functions Order with reference to capital liability. Concludes that 'Land Stock liability is part of the Public Debt of the United Kingdom to be apportioned under Article 5 of the Treaty'. Details the position of the Commission under the Irish Free State (Consequential Provisions) Act, 1922 [Jan 1923]; copies of correspondence between A.P. Waterfield and Hogan concerning the administration of land purchase services, financial implications and quit rents (March 1923); copy of a memorandum by John T. Drennan, Secretary, Land Commission, concerning the sale of the estate of R.A. Studdert and the difficulties involved because of the refusal by tenants to accept liability for payment of a drainage maintenance rate and related correspondence (June 1923); memorandum concerning the 'guarantee fund' created under the Purchase of Land (Ireland) Act, 1891 and the Ireland Development Act, 1903 with related analysis in view of the transfer of Land Commission functions. 44 pp
- 787 6 Feb 1923 Land Acts 1903, 1909. Typescript copy extracts from statements made in the House of Commons on the 1903 and 1909 Land Acts, forwarded to Kennedy by the Secretary to the Minister of Agriculture. 3 items

- 788 April 1923-April 1924 Land Bill, 1923. Letters mainly See also from Hogan to Kennedy concerning P4/1496, 1506 the Land Bill. Includes circular copy of letter from Hogan to the President, Executive Council describing the difficulty of passing an equitable land bill given the state of agrarianism in the country. Suggests priorities in legislation. 'In the meantime no Land Bill which would be even fair as between the tenants and the landless men - not to speak of the landlords - could be introduced ' (7 April 1923); memorandum by Hogan describing an inconclusive meeting of the Land Purchase and Arrears Conference with details of the demands made by the tenants and landlords and their respective financial implications. He concludes that the Land Bill should give 'better terms to the tenants than the 1920 bill' while expressing the hope that it would also give 'what relief [we can] to the landlords, especially to the poorer landlords' (17 April 1923); MS letter from Gerald Horan to Kennedy suggesting that the Bill include a clause to transfer the power and authority vested in the Land Judge to the Land Commission; letter and memorandum from James Rogers (solicitor) to Kennedy on the Land Bill with reference to the functions and procedures of the Land Commission; letter from Lord Dunraven to Kennedy requesting clarification of fishing rights under the Bill and related letter from Hogan to Kennedy arising out of his inquiry. 24 pp

V SEAMAD EIREANN

i Governor General's Proclamation

Dec 1922

- 983 6-13 Dec 1922 Letters from Horan to Kennedy concerning publication of the Governor General's proclamation constituting the Senate of Dail Eireann. Horan hopes 'His Ex' would not consider it 'high-handed' of him to have drafted the proclamation without his authority. Suggests the proclamation should have been in the name of the King but thinks only the Colonial Office might notice this error ...'if so the blame can rest on the slender shoulders of the signatory' Includes copy of Iris Oifigiuil containing the proclamation, typescript draft with MS amendments by Kennedy of the proclamation and related item. 5 items

ii Standing orders Jan 1923

- 984 [Jan 1923] Printed copy of the Report of the Senate Committee on Standing Orders. 12 pp
- 985 25 Jan 1923 Printed copy of provisional standing orders adopted by the Senate for two months. 12 pp

iii Finance bill procedure June-Aug 1923

- 986 June-Aug 1923 Correspondence concerning finance bills and the Senate including copy of letter from Gregg to the President in which he states that the procedure of the Senate in amending the Finance Bill was not in accordance with the Constitution and pointing out the danger of an unconstitutional procedure being established. Contains copy of note from the President to Kennedy agreeing with Gregg and requesting his advice; copy of letter from Kennedy to Cosgrave concerning the amendment made in the Senate to the Finance Bill which he also regards as unconstitutional. He details the reasons for his opinion, the position of the Senate in relation to amendments and the procedure that should now be followed in the Dail with MS draft; letter from Senator Lord Glenavy to G. McGann, Office of the President and forwarded to Kennedy, thanking him for a copy of the Attorney General's opinion. He argues with Kennedy over use of the word 'pass' in relation to the reading of finance bills in the Senate. 'I have always endeavoured to prevent any friction between the two Houses and cannot imagine that any is likely to arise upon such a trivial issue ...'. 18 pp

iv Staff appointment and remuneration administration of the Senate. He refers in particular to the 'advisory counsel' whose functions he compares with the work of similar officials in the House of Lords; copy of letter from Glenavy to Cosgrave about his salary. 'I was at first disposed not to accept any payment ... I have however been urged to accept it, as otherwise I might seem to be trying for cheap popularity at the expense of others and by making a precedent render it difficult for anyone with small means to take my place;' minutes of meeting between Hayes and members of the Senate on staffing requirements. 14 pp

VI COMMUNICATIONS BETWEEN BOTH HOUSES OF THE OIREACHTAS Dec 1922-March 1923

- 988 14 Dec 1922 - Circular copy of resolution of the Committee on Procedure concerning cooperation between the Dail and Senate.
- Circular copy of memorandum outlining various ways in which the Senate and Dail would work together and related procedures. 4 pp

Little Christian Bills trembling in the sand until, Sir, you dropped the gate and the lions pounced in committee. Most of this I was compelled to watch from the outer silence of the official gallery, smothering many a cry of pain ...' 3 pp
- 992 24 March 1923 MS draft with amendments and copy letter from Kennedy to Hayes clarifying and defining use of the term 'Anglo-Irish Treaty' and related terms in parliamentary bills. 2 pp
- 993 20 June 1923 Scrappy MS note from Hayes to Kennedy cryptically remarking 'why not go upstairs with their Lordships if you feel so disposed ?'
- 994 9 Jan 1924 Copy typescript extract from article in Eire , sent to Kennedy by Hayes, describing Kennedy's counter-argument in the Dail against the contention of Captain William Redmond, TD (Waterford National League) that George V was the commander in chief of the Free State army. It discusses the reaction of Cosgrave to Redmond. The latter was 'treated by Mr Cosgrave with a concentrated display of venom and vulgarity which could hardly be exceeded if the gallant Deputy were a mere Republican'. The article concludes by commenting on the role of the Ceann Comhairle in the debate which was described as being partisan - 'the result of political bias or mental obtuseness'. 3 pp
- 995 11 April 1924 - Note from Hayes to Kennedy informing him that he was obtaining the galley proof of his statements [in the Dail from the debate on the US liquor treaty with Great Britain]. Related items include MS and typescript notes by Kennedy analysing the debate with particular reference to definition of 'international' law. 8 pp recess. 'I write this note in a spirit of calm despair - many other similar notes and conversations with yourself having proved fruitless.' He appends a list of parliamentary work which he sees as 'unavoidable' and suggests means by which the programme could be speeded up. 3 pp

ii Clerk of the Dail

April 1923-May 1924

- 997 9 April 1923 Urgent letter from Ó Murchadha to Kennedy enclosing a copy of the draft proceedings of the Dail for 6 December 1922. Seeks his opinion about inclusion of a reference to the Governor General 'appointing' the President and members of the Executive Council, as technically, the Governor General's appointments did not constitute an act of the Dail. Ó Murchadha points out that 'nomination' by the Dail was only one part of the process leading to eventual 'appointment'. 2 items
- 998 29 May-5 June 1923 Copy of letter from Kennedy to Ó Murchadha suggesting that copies of bills and acts be deposited in the Law Library 'as was done under the old régime in the case of the British Library'; reply from Ó Murchadha agreeing to his suggestion. 2 pp
- 999 8-11 June 1923 Circular letter from Ó Murchadha to members of the Executive Council requesting ministers presenting bills to limit their first stage speeches to brief outlines of the content of the bill and to reserve lengthier comments until the second stage of the reading when members of the Dail would have read the text. Contains note from Cosgrave to Kennedy indicating that this procedure appeared to be in conflict with Kennedy's opinion. 1p
- 1000 31 Dec 1923 Copy letter from Kennedy to Ó Murchadha seeking his help with a request from the Earl of Granard for an Irish version of his name. 1p

- 1001 30 April-17 May 1924 Copy letter from Kennedy to Ó Murchadha complaining that the Translation Department had used 'Priomh Aturnae' for both his office and that of the Chief State Solicitor. He also points out the undesirability of translating the official titles of old British acts into Irish, and regrets that the practice had been stopped of printing the 'arrangement of sections' in several Irish acts; reply from Ó Murchadha dealing with the points raised and making related suggestions; further letter from Kennedy to Ó Murchadha offering advice on the Irish translation of Chief State Solicitor and reiterating the value of 'arrangement of sections'. 4 pp

iii Deputy Chairman of the Senate

July 1923

- 1002 2 July 1923 Letter from Douglas to Kennedy detailing the reasons why he would not support the Public Safety (Emergency Powers) Bill. He praises the progress the Government had made in the area of law and order particularly with reference to the use of an unarmed police force. He feels the measures of the bill would 'run a very grave risk of weakening the whole position of the civil authority in the future' but encourages substitution of the civil authority 'acting strictly in the spirit of the Constitution'. He describes the Bill as a 'real blunder' and dislikes in particular, its introduction of flogging 'especially after our history and its extensive use in '98'. 4 pp

III SUPREME COURT OF JUDICATURE

April 1923 [-Feb] 1924

- 1073 7-12 April 1923 Private letters from E.J. Walsh, Accountant General, Supreme Court of Judicature, to Kennedy concerning the necessity of reconstructing a set of ledgers for his office from the records of the Bank of Ireland to substitute for those destroyed in the Four Courts in 1922. Includes copies of correspondence between E.R. Deverell, Accountant General, Bank of Ireland and Walsh concerning the facilities which the bank had provided for the staff of the Court of Judicature for the reconstruction of their records. Deverell emphasises that the records would not necessarily supply all the information contained in those destroyed. He warns that some incomplete information already used by the court had resulted in overdrawn accounts; memorandum by Walsh in which he suggests that the bank records might be 'taken over by the Accountant General of the Supreme Court or by the Public Record Office'. He proposes opening new Supreme Court ledgers and details their content and potential. 9 pp

- 1103 11 June 1923 Letter from Walsh to Kennedy angrily noting a suggestion in the Freemans Journal that the report of the Judiciary Committee would not be published and emphasising the need for informed public opinion about the nature of the proposed judicial system. lp
- 1104 10 July-18 Aug 1923 Letter, marked private, from Walsh to Kennedy congratulating him on the report of the Committee, extolling his choice of Committee member and offering to read the text of the bill. He encourages Kennedy to stand for election in Donegal. ...'the Donegal man is essentially practical and will recognise the value of having "a friend in Court" '. He details the method by which Kennedy could enlist the support of the clergy, business men and unionists; copy reply from Kennedy declining to stand for election and emphasising the policy of keeping the law removed from politics. 'I have myself constantly preached this doctrine and urged it from the beginning as the ideal to be aimed for. I could not therefore complain when it was decided that I should not stand for a Seat at the Election.' He refers to an obstruction at the reading of the bill which had necessitated its postponement until the new Dail assembled. 7 pp

- 1127 11 Feb 1924 Letter from Walsh to Kennedy criticising Lord Glenavy's stance in the debate on the Bill, noting in particular, a 'misstatement about our Committee and robes'. Considers Glenavy anxious to win cheap popularity. ...'he would have ratted on the Bill only he could not for shame. Gogarty was very good on his seeking to kill his own child. Of course, this may not be a complete explanation. You never know when the Masonic "grip" is working'. Praises the Government, the President and Kennedy for their success during the Bill debates. 2 pp
- 1128 11 Feb 1924 Letter from Walsh to Kennedy discussing section 74 of the Bill and hoping he can be a member of the Rule-Making-Authority. Refers to the use of Irish in courts in the Irish-speaking districts. 3 pp
- 1129 4-22 April 1924 Letter from Walsh to Kennedy with more congratulations on the Bill. 'It is by far the biggest legal reform ever attempted in our history, and is the most successful effort that has been made since the Treaty to substitute for a British institution one worthy of the special genius of our race ...' He attributes this achievement to Kennedy's 'Irish instincts, breadth of view, freshness of outlook, and courage'; copy reply from Kennedy. 2 pp
- 1130 10 Oct-6 Dec 1923 Letters from Henry Hanna to Kennedy outlining advice he tendered on the Bill with reference to restricting trial by jury to criminal cases and provision for judges to control costs in every case. IX LANGUAGE

 i Use of Irish

March 1923-March 1927

- 1170 March 1923-July 1924 MS draft and copy letter from Kennedy to Cosgrave concerning the objection of Frank Fahey, Secretary, Gaelic League, to the ruling by Chief Justice Moloney requiring that an affidavit in Irish be accompanied by a duplicate in English, the related question of the position of Irish as the national language of the Free State, and noting that 'provision will have to be made on the reconstruction of the Judiciary for equal recognition of the two languages ... to protect litigants against being deprived of their rights by playing on the National Language to the defeat of Justice'; two letters to Kennedy from Fahey urging the use of Irish in the courts, in particular by court personnel, and outlining the areas in which it should be used. Includes MS draft reply in Irish by Kennedy. 10 pp
- 1171 22 July 1924 Letters to Kennedy in Irish from Sean Ó hUadhaigh (solicitor) complaining about the difficulty of submitting documents in Irish in court with MS draft reply by Kennedy, and its Irish translation, expressing hope that the new court rules would allow for a recognised vocabulary of Irish terms. 8 pp
- 1172 24 March 1925 Letter to Kennedy from Richard Mulcahy, TD, enclosing a circular copy of a memorandum by a district court judge on the administration of law in Irish-speaking districts. The author maintains that the only court 'with any pretensions to being Irish' is the district court and suggests

Ghaedhalach' outlining its jurisdiction, personnel and other matters of administration. Suggests that his scheme would 'revolutionize the administration of the law in the "Gaelthacht" '. 8 pp
- 1173 Feb-March 1927 Personal letter from Louis
Walsh with MS draft and typescript copy reply from Kennedy on the subject of a special Irish court. Walsh outlines the difficulties faced by native Irish speakers in circuit courts but Kennedy feels that a special court would isolate Irish speakers, confirm the anglicisation of the rest of Ireland, and create an unnecessary partition. As a solution, Kennedy would hope to see bilingual members of the legal profession. 5 pp

Feb 1923-Jan 1926
- 1174 8-17 Feb 1923 Copy letter from Kennedy to the Lord Chief Justice complaining about the use of the expression 'Southern Ireland' in legal documents and requesting substitution of 'Irish Free State'; reply from W.E. Wylie to Kennedy noting that the judges had been summoned by the Lord Chief Justice and that they found the language of Kennedy's letter 'unwarranted and unhappy'; typescript copy of Kennedy's reply to Wylie reiterating his point about 'Southern Ireland' which he describes as 'untrue ... and offensive to the people of this country'. 3 pp
- 1175 July 1924 Typescript draft of order by the Chief Justice substituting the words 'person of unsound mind' for 'lunatic' in court proceedings and in related court documents. 2 pp

I CORRESPONDENCE

i Office of the President, Executive Council. June 1924-Jan 1930

- 1203 9 June 1924 George Gavan Duffy correspondence.
Strictly confidential copy letter from Kennedy to William T. Cosgrave, President, Executive Council, concerning correspondence given to Kennedy by Gavan Duffy relating to the 'unpleasantness that arose in relation to representatives in Germany'. Kennedy notes he could not remove the correspondence from the Attorney General's Office and was giving it to Cosgrave 'as custodian of state papers', requesting him to file it 'amongst secret papers'. 2 pp
- 1204 9-25 June 1924 King's Counsel. Copy letters
See also from Kennedy to Cosgrave concerning P4/492 the creation of King's Counsel, noting the existence of barristers who would previously have taken silk under normal circumstances, and emphasising the necessity of appointing KCs, or barristers of similar rank, to assist in the distribution of legal business. Notes the alternative course of action which could be taken if the Executive Council did not advise the Governor General to create 'silks'. 4 pp

DH STATE SEALS

I CORRESPONDENCE AND NOTES Nov 1922-April 1928

Correspondence between Kennedy, A.S. Roberts (Director of Stamping, Revenue Commissioners), Robert A. Johnson (Deputy Master and Controller, Royal Mint), C.J. Gregg and H.P. Boland (Ministry of Finance), A. McGoogan (Art Department, National Museum), W.T. Cosgrave (President Executive Council), and with officials of the Revenue Commissioners and Office of Public Works concerning the design and manufacture of state seals. Details search for a design symbolic of the Irish nation for the Great Seal; selection of the thirteenth century Brian Boru harp for the focal point of the Great Seal and the panels on the base of the Ardagh Chalice for its surround; variations for ministerial and office seals, court seals, monograms for government writing paper, embossing stamps and a plaque for display in the Courts of Justice; making of impressions, engravings and casts in London; requests for publication and display of the Great Seal; views of Arthur V. Matheson (Parliamentary draftsman), George Sigerson and Thomas U. Sadlier (Office of Arms) on heraldic implications and interpretation including a note on the history of the arms of Ireland by Sadlier (25 Nov 1922).

Nov 1922-Aug 1923

Includes circular letter from M. Mac Donnchadh (Office of the Executive Council) to Kennedy detailing the design of the state seal used by the Provisional Government and suggesting modifications for its adoption by the Free State government. Describes the arms of the four provinces contained on the seal and notes 'If considered desirable to symbolise in the design the present partition of Ulster, this could be done by leaving the Arms incomplete and broken at the corner.' Sample of seal attached.

- P4/
- 1301 Dec 1923-June 1924
- 1302 July-Sept 1924
Includes copy letter from Kennedy to Wilson, Hartnell and Co. expressing alarm about their publication of a picture of the harp similar to its representation on state seals and expressing even greater horror because he had seen it 'described as the trade mark of the Guinness Company' (31 July 1924).
- 1303 Oct-Nov 1924
- 1304 Dec 1924-July 1925
- 1305 Sept 1925-May 1926
- 1306 1923 Letter to Kennedy from Constantine P. Curran with notes on the Brian Boru harp, its suitability as a national device but cautioning less heraldry be abandoned in the seal design - 'remember that there are twenty million snobs in America anxious to exchange dollars for coats of arms'; MS notes with typescript copy by Curran listing references in authoritative works to the Brian Boru harp and noting comments by Bunting, Petrie and O'Curry on it.
3 items
- 1307 [1923-6] Typescript copy of notes by George Coffey on the origin and decoration of the Ardagh Chalice.
4 pp
- 1308 30 Nov 1926 Two copy letters from Kennedy to George Atkinson (Metropolitan School of Art) and to A. Le Brocquy arising out of the latter's inquiry about the Great Seal of the Free State. Outlines the background to the choice of design and refers Le Brocquy to the Executive Council for permission to copy a particular photograph of the Brian Boru harp used by the Government.
2 items
- 1309 24-26 April 1928 Letter to Kennedy from T.P. Le Fanu, Bray, noting an error in a paper read by Herbert Wood in the Royal Irish Academy with reference to the use of the Irish Privy Seal; MS notes by Kennedy with draft and copy reply stressing the importance of Wood's research and commenting on the Seal's use.

DJ NATIONAL HERITAGE, ART AND

I LANE BEQUEST AND NATIONAL

GALLERY 1923-6

- 1330 6-10 Nov 1923 MS. letter from Senator W.B. Yeats to Kennedy seeking an appointment to discuss formation of an art committee to which the Government had agreed in principle; copy reply from Kennedy. 2 items.
- 1331 15-22 Nov 1923 Letter from Yeats to Kennedy concerning the Lane pictures and the composition of the art committee to advise the government on official design. Notes that Charles Shannon and Sir John Lavery had agreed to act on it but would be opposed to enlargement of the committee because it 'would lessen their authority ... Having got them to consent to act at all is ... a great point gained. I think the publication of their names as art advisors to the Irish Government would be to its honour in the public mind'. Encloses letter from E. March (Secretary to the Duke of Devonshire) informing him that the Cabinet was presently unable to deal with the Lane pictures but assuring him 'no possible alternative Gov[ernmen]t is at all likely to be less well disposed'; copy letter from Kennedy to Yeats telling him he would raise the points he made with the President. 3 items.
- 1332 28 Nov-11 Dec 1923 Copy letter, marked strictly confidential, from Kennedy to the President relating his conversation with Yeats about the composition of the art committee and its scope, and discussing some of its proposed members. Kennedy suggests having 'a committee of honorary art advisers by prescribing certain conditions. They would certainly have to follow tracks laid down for them'. He also refers to the Lane pictures and suggests 'a permanent loan is really a solution of the matter, which enables the British Authorities to get out of the difficulty without any humiliation'; letter from Paul Banim (Secretary to the President) informing him that

- 1332 cont. the President felt no action should be taken on the matters raised in his letter until 'conditions are more stable in Great Britain'. 2 items.
- 1333 [May 1925] MS. letter from William T. Cosgrave, President, Executive Council, to Kennedy concerning Kennedy's appointment by Eoin Mac Neill as a governor of the National Gallery and the resulting complication in view of other candidates for nomination. Refers to the Cabinet committee appointed to examine the Lane bequest the majority of which decided that Lane 'really intended to make a legal bequest to Dublin'. 4 pp
- 1334 26 May 1925 MS. letter from Cosgrave to Kennedy referring to the report of the Cabinet committee on the Lane bequest which desired 'to offend nobody, and were indifferent inconsequence as to whether they pleased anybody'. Feels that if Dublin had a suitable gallery, the National Gallery in London would be willing to give the pictures on perpetual loan. 'As it is they have an excellent excuse for not acting on the report.' 2 pp
- 1335 2 Sept 1925 MS. letter from Cosgrave to Kennedy regretting that 'the matter I wrote you about was held in abeyance' and assuming Mac Neill had left for the conference. 1p
- 1336 1926 Newspaper cuttings relating to the National Gallery and to the Sir Hugh Lane bequest.

- 1342 11 Aug 1924 Chief Justice's chain of office.
Letter from Gerald Horan to Kennedy concerning the official chain of the Chief Justice with details of its acquisition and origin and noting it to be in the possession of the Lord Chief Justice, T.F. Molony, with the deed of trust. 3 pp
- 1343 30 Jan-19 Feb 1929 Treasure trove. Correspondence between Kennedy, Eoin O'Duffy (Commissioner of the Garda Siochana), John A. Costello (Attorney General), Dr Adolf Mahr (Keeper of Irish Antiquities, National Museum) and the Secretary, Royal Irish Academy, concerning procedures for dealing with treasure trove and objects of antiquarian and archaeological interest, and the examination of the situation by the Attorney General arising out of a request of the Committee of Polite Literature and Antiquities of the Royal Irish Academy. Correspondence notes loopholes in the existing procedures for dealing with these and the ensuing dangers. Includes references for Costello from Kennedy on articles and files on the subject (13 Feb 1929) and copy letter from Mahr detailing the deficiencies of the situation and citing two specific cases (2 Feb 1929). Kennedy notes in a letter to Costello that 'dealers and Americans are constantly on the watch ready to snap up these things, buying for a small sum from ignorant country people what may be priceless in a national antiquarian collection' and refers to a find of coins, stated to date from the reign of Edward the first, which had not yet reached the Academy.
- 1344 March 1931-Jan 1932 Poitin stills. Correspondence between Kennedy, Mahr and O'Duffy concerning the acquisition of poitin stills for the National Museum and for the museum of the Royal Irish Academy. With reference to a still from Dinish island O'Duffy notes, 'I hope the members of the Academy will find it interesting as an exhibit. It has given good service in the past, and under proper conditions would still produce spirit as potent as anything manufactured in more pretentious articles'. O'Duffy also notes 'it appears a splendid specimen has recently been seized in Donegal'. 12 items.
- 1345 27 April-10 Oct 1931 Public Record Office. Letter to Kennedy from O'Duffy enclosing a map and deed relating to Tipperary which he received from an American acquaintance with copy letter from Kennedy to Charles J. McGarry, Assistant Keeper of Records, Public Record Office, explaining their origin; letter of acknowledgment from McGarry noting 'since 1922 we are anxious to get anything of that nature'. 3 items.

III THEATRE 1929-34

- 1346 14 Nov 1929 Gate Theatre. Letter to Kennedy from S. Hughes, Secretary, Dublin Gate Theatre Studio, concerning the issue of shares in an effort to raise funds. Notes that although a judge cannot hold shares, this problem can be avoided by his wife purchasing them. 1p
- 1347 June 1930 Gate Theatre. Correspondence between Kennedy and Hilton Edwards, Director of the Gate Theatre, concerning an application by the Gate for a grant from the Carnegie Trust Committee to help with the theatre's development. Includes copy of the Director's submission to the Trust outlining the work of the Gate and copy of Kennedy's letter to the Trust in support of their application detailing the contribution of the theatre to drama and creativity. 5 items.
- 1348 Feb 1934 Theatre Royal. Letter to Kennedy from Col. S.W. Carty concerning the preservation of the Theatre Royal with details of a deputation to the Lord Mayor and copy reply from Kennedy outlining the organisations which might support the project. 2 items.

IV STATUES AND MEMORIALS

1934-6

- 1349 March-May 1924 Bar war memorial. Correspondence between Kennedy and J.H.S. Russell, barrister at law, concerning the erection of a memorial in Dublin Castle by the Bar to its members who fell in the Great War and related copy letters from Kennedy to the President and to the Ministry of Finance. Copy letter from Kennedy to the President refers to the death of Bar members at Gallipoli and emphasises that they 'were not confined to any particular political or religious section'. Letters include description of the memorial, details of its inscription and the approval of the Executive Council. 10 items.

P4/

- 1350 23 Jan-21 Feb 1934 Cuchullain statue. Correspondence between Kennedy and John Burke, solicitor, concerning the purchase and siting of Oliver Sheppard's statue of Cuchullain as a memorial to the men of 1916. Burke refers to the support for its purchase from many with artistic associations including Thomas Bodkin, Jack Yeats, George Atkinson, Sean O'Sullivan and W.H. Orpen. Notes that Pearse had written of Sheppard's genius as a sculptor in An Claidheamh Soluis. Kennedy dwells at length on the suitability of the site and on the related question of the size of the cast of Sheppard's statue. 'I have a horror of most of the exhibits in mid-O'Connell Street and ... in my view, apart from the doubtful character of some of the statues, there ought to be no statues in O'Connell Street at all. My dream always has been to make the great Central avenue of the Phoenix Park an avenue of memorials of those worthy of being placed there.' Expresses delight at Sheppard's design which makes 'a definite break away from trousered statues of eminently Victorian respectability'. He also refers in one letter to his 'inconvenient medieval restrictions' (30 Jan 1934). 6 items.
- 1351 May 1935 Cuchullain statue. Letter from Sheppard to Kennedy enclosing a photograph of a portrait of Cuchullain - a judge - and noting Kennedy's interest in the work. 2 items.
- 1352 18 Nov 1936 Thomas Kettle bust. Letter from Laurence J. Kettle to Kennedy concerning the memorial bust of Tom Kettle, outlining an earlier Board of Works objection to its erection in St. Stephen's Green because of the wording in the inscription and suggesting that it should remain in the National Gallery. 4 pp

DK AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION /

CANADIAN BAR ASSOCIATION

I VISIT TO DUBLIN BY ABA / CBA 1923-5

- 1353 Dec 1923 Letter to Kennedy from R.J. Kelly enclosing a page from the American Bar Association (ABA) journal noting the intended meeting of the Association in London and suggesting the delegates be invited to visit Ireland. 2 items.
- 1354 Jan-March 1924 Letter from Henry Hanna to Kennedy suggesting he extend the invitation to the ABA delegates in the name of the Bar Council, mentions a possible programme for the visit and details the membership of a committee to make the arrangements. The latter would include 'another junior as Hon[orary] Sec[retary] to do the donkey work ...' He urges tact in seeking the cooperation of the Northern Bench and Bar; correspondence between Kennedy and John H.S. Russell, Secretary, Bar Council of Ireland, concerning the invitation and the formation of the committee. Kennedy notes that a statement had been made in the London Times about the invitation. 6 items.
- 1355 April 1924 Telegrams and letters between James McNeill, Irish High Commissioner, in London, and Kennedy, concerning the proposed visit and the grievance of E.H. Coleman, Secretary of the Canadian Bar Association (CBA) because an invitation was apparently being extended by the Irish Bar only to the ABA; Kennedy's assurance that no official invitations had been extended and that inquiries would be made about inviting members of the CBA. Includes copy letter from Kennedy detailing the situation about the invitations which had been complicated by the contact between T.F. Molony, Lord Chief Justice, and the English Bar about the visit. Kennedy points out that as the Benchers were in a more lucrative position as far as entertainment was concerned, the Bar Council

- 1355 cont. would allow the Lord Chief Justice to take the initial action. He also notes that the recent passage of the Courts of Justice Act would terminate the existing courts and judicial offices and that there would probably be a different Chief Justice appointed in the coming months. 4 items.
- 1356 April-March 1924 Correspondence between Molony and Kennedy concerning the proposed visit to Britain by the ABA and CBA, the latter being described by Kennedy as 'joint hosts with the English Bar' rather than visitors. Includes copy of memorandum by Molony on the subject of the visit, describing his related conversation with Thomas Kemp, Secretary of the ABA, and referring to the entertainment which the Benchers proposed providing. 4 items.
- 1357 30 July 1924 Menu for the dinner given by the Benchers of King's Inns for members of the ABA and CBA with related table plan, programme of music by the Garda Band and MS. list of speech headings by Kennedy. 7 items.

and suggested visits. 18 items.

P4/

- 1364 April-Dec 1928 Correspondence and telegrams relating to Kennedy's visit mainly concerning travel arrangements and engagements to speak. Invitations issued by various organisations including the Knights of Columbus and various branches of The Canadian Club. Includes letters of thanks from Kennedy. 26 items.
- 1365 31 Dec 1929 MS. draft of letter by Kennedy to Andrew W. Sexton, Chicago thanking him for a copy of Time in which a remark of Kennedy's was published. 'A kind of cheap humour [at] the expense of American life has for long been a fashion in some of the press in these countries ... I was glad to have the opportunity of publicly refut[ing] these ideas.' Recalls his visit to the Sexton home with pleasure. lp
- 1366 31 Dec 1929 MS. draft and copy letter from Kennedy to William H. Sexton, Chicago, thanking him for hospitality when he visited Chicago and for sending him a publication by Roscoe Pound on Common Law which he had not realised had grown from the 'original brochure ... into a large volume'. Comments favourably on American law schools. 2 items.

| 1381 | April 1923-Jan 1924 | Routine circulars about meetings of the Party. | |
| 1382 | 7-27 Nov 1923 | Correspondence between Kennedy and James F. Dalton, importer, on political matters and on the Cumann na nGaedheal party in particular. Dalton comments at length on electioneering matters. Observes 'Cumann na nGaedheal, as an Organization, does not inspire the people and is only of interest to those who are actively connected with it' and advocates that the Party should be managed like 'any other Business Concern'. Comments favourably on the Minister of Finance's retrenchment policy particularly in banking and commercial circles. He encloses a letter he received from Donald Rose, European Traffic Manager of the Illinois Central Railway, who notes that the Irish government has 'a very difficult problem of National finance to solve, and they have undertaken to solve it with high courage'. Dalton also expatiates on a speech by Kennedy in the Dail, particularly his remarks about Darrell Figgis and Redmond. He describes Redmond's army record as a 'joke' ... 'on the eve of his | |

the covering letter marked private and confidential. The letter contains a vituperative attack on the Irregulars and on the Government's handling of their suppression. The letter starts with an analysis of the intentions of 'that diabolical McSweeney (sic) women' which, he feels, are based on a 'tradition of habitual and fundamental contempt for authority'. He describes the attempts of the Government to deal with the Irregulars as ineffectual and notes 'De Valera and Stack still live while many of the obscure dupes who followed them fill traitors' graves'. The existence of republican sympathisers in the civil service, the relative press freedom enjoyed by the Irregulars and the release of hunger strikers are noted with anger. O'Sullivan urges the Government to deal with the situation by becoming imbued 'with the spirit of Fascism which briefly means Government by those naturally fit to rule, ... possessing superior intelligence, patriotism, enlightened common sense and prudence'... He suggests expurgating the public services, a campaign of 'intelligent' propaganda, the protection of younger people in schools, universities and seminaries from Irregular propaganda and the use of Achill Island as an Irregular compound. 'I should love ... to see Mary Mac having to milk the cow ... before sitting down to breakfast.'

c Letters offering help and letters of congratulation

- 1407 13-22 Aug 1923 MS, private letter from Judge W.J. Johnston to Kennedy enclosing £10 for the election fund. As he does not approve of judges subscribing publicly, he asks for his subscription to be recorded anonymously. Contains note of acknowledgment by Kennedy; copy letter from Kennedy to Cosgrave forwarding Johnston's contribution and suggesting newspaper advertisements to advise people about where to send subscriptions and letter of acknowledgment from the Office of the President. 3 items.
- 1408 13-16 Oct 1923 MS letter from John S. Kelly, Irish Railway Workers Trade Union describing the area in which Kennedy is standing and its problems - 'where our so call (sic) Countess [and] her lady friends are concentrating their malicious warfare amongst thousands of half educat[ed ?] men and women voters'; copy letter of thanks from Kennedy. 2 items.
- 1409 19 Oct -10 Nov 1923 Letter from L. McNeive, Office of Assistant Legal Adviser, to Kennedy offering to assist with election work and mentioning his previous election experience in Cavan in 1918 when Arthur Griffith was returned; copy reply from Kennedy, marked personal, acknowledging his offer of help but suggesting that as a civil servant he should not be asked to assist. 2 items.
- 1410 23 Oct-5 Nov 1923 Letter and telegrams received by Kennedy on his election victory and others wishing him success from friends and associates including C.J. France, Sir John Lavery, J.A. Coyne, Louis J. Walsh and Constantine P. Curran with some copy letters of acknowledgment from Kennedy and a draft letter of thanks to those supporting his candidature. Includes letter from Michael Dawson (solicitor) recalling his mother's one time ambition for him to become a Resident Magistrate and letter from Seamus de Burca in Skibbereen noting with favour the government's economic policy but adding 'the old age

e Election agent's overdraft

April 1924-June 1926

Correspondence mainly between Kennedy and W.P. Corrigan including letters from George Lyons, Dublin city south constituency committee, and from S. Hayes and J.J. Walsh, Cumann na nGaedheal concerning an overdraft incurred by Corrigan as Kennedy's election agent in the 1923 by-election. Correspondence concerns refusal of the Coiste Gnotha to make any further contribution to the Dublin city south constituency to liquidate the overdraft because the constituency already received a 'proportionately greater' contribution than that of any other constituency and because it was felt that the overdraft was 'clearly Mr Kennedy's liability'. Irate letters from Kennedy outline his position, details of his own personal contribution to the election fund, resentment at not being provided with adequate accounts and his initial refusal to settle the account because he felt it unfair personally, and inappropriate for a member of the judiciary to contribute to the funds of any political party. Kennedy comments 'The election was ... conducted with the utmost extravagance by the agents of the Cumann na nGaedheal organisation, who kept the whole control ... of affairs in their own hands, as they were perhaps entitled to do, ... but not if they were to unload the liability on me'. He outlines the delicacy of his position as a member of the judiciary with his wish to help Corrigan in what he calls 'an honourable obligation', and ultimately discharges the overdraft (7 June 1926). Includes copy letter from Kennedy to Corrigan resigning his position as TD in Dublin city south when appointed Chief Justice (5 June 1924).

- 1425 25 Nov 1927 Letter to Kennedy from Cosgrave telling him about a discussion he had with R.W. Craig, KC, to whom Kennedy had given a letter of introduction ... 'I believe he is taking away... favourable impressions of us'. 1p
- 1426 14 April 1928 MS. note from Cosgrave to Kennedy possibly enclosing some papers for discussion. 1p
- 1427 10 Jan 1931 MS letter from Cosgrave to Kennedy concerning [a presentation ?] which he feels should be carried out on behalf of the members of 'the new order of things'. Notes the generous nature of the contribution from the Garda 'due to the close touch of General O'Duffy' in comparison with the Army one. 2 pp
- 1428 30 June-1 July 1922 Sir John and Hazel, Lady Lavery (1922-3)
Copy text of a telegram from Sir John Lavery inquiring about the possibility of painting 'things in Dublin'; copy of text of reply from Kennedy informing him that nothing spectacular remained but that there was still 'street fighting and sniping with considerable danger to civilians'. 2 items
- Correspondence between Kennedy and Hazel, Lady Lavery, mainly discussing the Lavery plans to visit Ireland, their choice of hotel and her aversion to being a house guest. She refers with regret to the death of Sir Henry Wilson and how she and others had been called 'conspirators' and 'murderers' by English friends. She notes 'Winston was enchanted with your letter to him' (24 June). Includes letter of introduction to Kennedy for Senator Phelan of California - a friend of Shane Leslie's. Comments on how American journalists bore her. 'I am an Irish Subject now, amn't I ... being married to a Free Stater so I can say what I like about Americans and it is a delicious relief to me ...' (8 Aug).

- 1430 25 June 1922
- 1431 [Aug] 1922
- 1432 8 Aug 1922
- 1433 Aug 1922 MS. text of telegram from Kennedy to Sir John noting he would be met at Kingstown (Dun Laoghaire) when arriving for Arthur Griffith's funeral and letter from Lady Lavery to Kennedy about dinner arrangements. 2 items.
- 1434 9 Oct 1922 Letter to Clare Kennedy from Lady Lavery in which she discusses various politicians at length. 'I read your letter to Winston. It cheered him very much ... one must not blame W. and the Government too severely ... Last night I dined with Sir James Berrie. He had been such a help with people here about Ireland ... he defended us all nobly with people like the Londonderrys and other mutual friends. He is writing something about Michael [Collins] which should be wonderful ... and Bernard Shaw has just sent me such a beautiful letter ... Katherine Tynan has written to me in regard to a petition to stop flogging in the North ... I am writing to Mr O'Higgins' secretary to find out the actual state of affairs ... tell Mr O'Higgins for me that I only expect a typewritten letter in reply to mine ... Lord Dunraven came to lunch today and waxed furious over the attitude of Lord Midleton and the "selfish Southern Unionists" - it was rather pathetic to see the poor old man almost weeping with rage because he had not been invited to the discussions with the Southern Unionists and you people on the 13th of June when the "SU" were so obdurate. Lord Donoughmore was the only one who was human or understanding Michael told me'. Refers to the possibility of wintering in America ... 'It means vast wealth for John' and describes Alice's (her daughter) attitude to her as a 'mingling of tenderness and stern condescension (sic) which is disconcerting to my old fashioned ideas of the relationship of Parent and Child !'. 6 pp
- 1435 [Jan-Feb 1923] Letter to Kennedy from Lady Lavery inviting him to tea and noting she had extended an invitation to other members of the Irish delegation including Cosgrave, Kevin O'Higgins, Ernest Blythe and Diarmuid O hEigeartaigh. Refers to her husband's impending visit to a nursing home. 2 pp

- 1436 [Jan/Feb 1923] Letter to Kennedy from Lady Lavery regretting she had not seen him and noting she had written to the editor of The Times 'to tell him a few minor things about you people ... one of them being the heavy [and] cruel sacrifices that you have made to keep faith with England and the Treaty'. Refers to her husband entering a nursing home. 4 pp
- 1437 [8 Feb 1923] Letter to Kennedy from Lady Lavery enclosing part of a letter she received from Mrs Arthur Harten concerning the arrest of a British officer, Captain Frank Eustace, in Ireland. Eustace was rearrested having been acquitted by one court on virtually the same charge and it was felt that this was simply due to 'anti-British sentiment'. Expresses anger at this belief but wishes to antagonise no one because 'one must make friends everywhere for the sake of the Boundary Commission'. She refers to a visit from J.H. Thomas of the Colonial Office. 'He was tremendously friendly and quite likeable and magnetic but oh! he is very vain, but of course clever, he had asked to lunch with me in order to "talk about Ireland" but he did all the talking and it was mostly about himself ... and the wonderful things he was going to do on the Boundary affair' ... I saw Cope yesterday and he is "keeping his eye on Thomas" but hopes to get Ramsay to take a strong and active part and not leave it to Thomas to manage entirely. He treats it all too much like settling a strike.' Refers to her husband's operation - 'John has had a horrid time'. 2 items.
- 1438 10 Nov 1923 Copy letter from Kennedy to Sir John informing him that a bill had been drafted in Ireland for the legal dissolution of marriage. He notes that one of his acquaintances, although separated by law from her husband, could not remarry at present. 'There never has been divorce in Ireland, as it has always been objected to on religious grounds by the vast majority of the people.' 2 pp
- 1439 22 May 1922 George Gavan Duffy (1922-33)
Letter to Kennedy from George Gavan Duffy, Minister of Foreign Affairs, postponing getting in touch with Kennedy about a matter on which he needed his advice. 1p

- 1454 24 Oct-3 Nov 1922 MS letter from Llewelyn Davies to Kennedy hoping to call at his London hotel to see him; copy reply from Kennedy regretting not having been in touch but promising to do so on his next visit to London. 2 items.
- 1455 14 June 1924 Letter to Kennedy from Llewelyn Davies noting the opening of the courts and Kennedy's position as Chief Justice. Recalls his past association with Kennedy 'going back to the day when you came with Mick to my office' and describes the courts - 'Of human institutions they are the most majestic, [and] Courts established by the People have not only the sanction which commands respect but "noblesse" by which they are themselves "obliged" '. 2 pp
- 1456 10-22 Aug 1922 Lionel Curtis (1922-6)
Letter to Kennedy from Lionel Curtis enclosing a letter he received from a friend, 'the recognised authority on constitutional questions', seeking information about the Irish Free State constitution. Refers to the death of Michael Collins. 'You will miss his bright presence terribly and so shall we here; but he would be the first to tell you that the cause for which he stood was too big to depend on the shoulders of any one man. I think a good many of us would feel like this if Mr Lloyd George were cut off. Yet other people would ... fill the place, and England would go on. And so Ireland will go on ...'; letter to Curtis from Felix Frankfurter, Harvard Law School, asking for information on the evolution of article 64 of the Constitution which 'introduces the familiar American doctrine of judicial review' and which he describes as being of 'vital significance'. 2 items.
- 1457 18 July-29 Aug 1924 Letter from Curtis to Kennedy introducing Justice Hy B. Higgins of the High Court of Australia and subsequent correspondence about his visit to Dublin between Kennedy, Curtis and Higgins. Higgins expresses approval of Kennedy's interest in Australian practice in arbitration in labour disputes and sends Kennedy appropriate literature and references. Records a conversation he had with Ramsay Mac Donald about the system in England and union opinion of arbitration (13 Aug). Includes comment by Curtis on Kennedy's 'superhuman labours as Attorney General. I never could understand how any human being could carry the load you carried with a smile on your face' (19 Aug). 7 items.

P4/

- 1462 1 Dec 1922 R.J.P. Mortished (1922-4)
Letter from Ronald J.P. Mortished to Kennedy hoping that he could help him to persuade William E. Wylie to allow him retire from the 'service' without the customary six months notice and later MS. note from Mortished saying that this had been feasible. 2 items.
- 1463 25-26 Jan 1924 Personal letter from Mortished at the Irish Labour Party and Trade Union Congress to Kennedy in which he reiterates identification of the draftsman of the Transport and Communications bill as W.R. Southeard, solicitor to the Railway Clerks Association. He comments with pleasure at the capability of a 'member of the inferior profession' in drafting an excellent bill; copy reply from Kennedy acknowledging the difference in the two professions but stating that 'inferiority and superiority in relation to the two professions is purely social and early Victorian' dating from before solicitors had become a 'highly reputable body'. 2 items.
- 1464 5 April 1922 Gerald Horan (1922)
Letter marked personal from Gerald Horan to Kennedy concerning his appointment as a temporary electoral officer. 1p
- 1465 [1922] Covering note from H[oran] to Kennedy with the 'Malta papers'. 1p

 P4/193 Dublin to Kennedy concerning the anxiety of the Standard Development Co. of New York about patenting protection for their petroleum products in the Irish Free State. O'Hanlon wondered if existing legislation afforded protection in Ireland until domestic legislation was passed; copy reply from Kennedy assuring him that all patents registered under British law were protected in Ireland, mentioning the introduction of legislation in the Free State on patents, designs and trademarks and emphasising its recognition of former British registrations.

 in the working week and failure to restore conciliation machinery. 4 pp
- 1547 April-May 1924 Town Tenants bill.
 Circular letter from Ja/me/s Forristal, Secretary, The Dublin and Provincial Retail Newsagents, Booksellers and Stationers Association, soliciting support for the Town Tenants bill.
 He details the plight of many of the Association's members who had taken on often derelict shops and made successful businesses but who were 'rewarded by having their rents doubled and in some cases trebled, and often by eviction'.
 He deplors the letting and sub-letting of shops and notes that as many as ten landlords can have interests in the same shop.
 - Circular letter from John Comroy drawing attention to what he sees as an omission in the Town Tenants bill. He feels it should be amended to protect leaseholders who have built up a business in premises on which the lease is expiring. 2 items.
- 1548 24-25 April 1924 Intoxicating Liquor Act, 1924
 Letter to Kennedy from W.D. O'Connell, Honorary Secretary, The City and County of Cork Tied House and Retail Vintners Association urging a reduction in the 'war time' tax on beer and spirits particularly in view of unemployment. Encloses a circular from the Association outlining points in relation to the Intoxicating Liquor bill mainly about opening hours; copy letter of acknowledgment from Kennedy's secretary. 3 items.

which had been established to investigate the potential of the Liffey power supply. 2 pp
- 1550 2-7 Aug 1925 Solicitors Act, 1925
Letter to Kennedy from Charles Gamble complaining about section 16 of the Solicitors Act which is 'so framed that to the discredit of the profession candidates gain admission with no education behind them but that of a National School, [and] modified entrance examinations are then granted to them under sec[tion] 17 thus reducing the test of any literary education to a minimum'. Refers to the 'prevailing apathy' about such matters and urges an 'arts degree [as] a condition of admission'; copy reply from Kennedy sympathising with his views and advocating the maintenance of 'old high standards'. 2 items.

April 1923-Nov 1924 Captain The Hon J.M. ffrench.
 Correspondence between Kennedy and Captain The Hon. J.M. ffrench in Italy mainly concerning the appointment of an Irish Free State representative to the Vatican, noting his suitability for the position and cautioning any contact with Monsignor Luzio. ffrench refers to his compensation case arising from the looting and burning of Castle ffrench. He notes how 'expenses go on [and on] when one is married [and] has children they are extremely heavy no matter how careful one is' (27 Feb 1924). Includes letter of support from Alice Stopford Green (April 1923) and MS. letter from William T. Cosgrave to Kennedy enclosing a letter from Tom Casement about ffrench. He describes him as a staunch supporter of the Government who hid men on the run during the Black and Tan war. Casement suggests a Senate vacancy for ffrench otherwise he might leave Ireland and live in Italy (Oct-Nov 1924). c 11 items

March 1922-June 1924 J. Clerc Sheridan Letter from Alice Stopford Green to Michael Collins introducing J. Clerc Sheridan, an Irishman living in South Africa who, according to Mrs Green, could be useful in advising on constitutional and financial matters with note for Kennedy on behalf of Collins asking him to draft a reply - 'he did not read through the whole letter himself' and draft reply; MS. letter to Kennedy from Sheridan in Rome describing his survey of European economic, monetary and trade conditions which had been commissioned by the South African government:
 'I feel it will be almost a miracle only to be won by patient effort and strong statesmanship (of which there is at present little evidence) if Europe is kept from going over the precipice ... Some countries can hardly be saved anyhow; Poland and Austria seem already at the verge'. Describes the Fascist movement in Italy. 'If you can imagine a human blend of Oliver Cromwell and Edward Carson tinged by a quality of Catholic ... puritanism, you will have Signor Mousellini.'
 Notes the 'excellent' spirit of the movement - 'just what you need in Ireland; the want of strong public spirit in Ireland used to irritate and disgust me'. Comments on matters in the Free State including the execution of Erskine Childers and on the lawless element which 'hitherto had its real character cloaked over by ... anti-British feeling ... eradication will not be simple or easy' (27 Dec 1922); letter to Kennedy from Sheridan in Cape Town congratulating him on his appointment as Chief Justice. Notes the acceptance by Judge Richard Feetham of the position of chairman of the Boundary Commission. 'He is absolutely imperturbable; the high explosives of even Irish politics wont trouble his calmness of temper; he has an instinctive sense of right and justice ... On the other hand he is typically English in bearing and manner; of New College he carries the Oxford style, but quite unconsciously ...' (12 June 1924). c 7 items

Morgan P. Jaqueurs
14 May-26 June 1923 Copy letter from Kennedy to the Minister of External Affairs enclosing a letter from Morgan P. Jaqueurs, Melbourne, Australia, an old friend of the Kennedy family, and suggesting that publicity material be sent to him. He notes that Jaqueurs has been doing 'his utmost in our interests in the press' there; letter from Sean Lester, Director of Publicity, to Kennedy agreeing with his suggestion which he describes as 'very helpful as we have been cultivating Australia for the last two months'. Encloses letter from Jaqueurs to Mrs Kennedy in which he expresses hope of receiving further supplements to be published by The Manchester Guardian on Ireland. Describes his supportive work for the Free State government and notes that ninety percent of Australians are in favour of the Irish Free State. Refers to the failure of republican supporters in Australia including Archbishop Mannix who 'has led his people into a bog hole and can neither extricate them nor himself'. 3 items

16-25 May 1928

Letter to Kennedy from Paul Banim, Secretary to the President, Executive Council, concerning a suggestion by Matthew McDonald of the Celtic Club in Melbourne that Jaegers should receive some form of recognition for his services to the Irish Free State. Notes two suggestions for such recognition, namely membership of the Royal Irish Academy or the conferring of an honorary degree by University College Dublin; MS draft and copy confidential reply from Kennedy outlining his family's association with Jaegers in Australia and his work both for the Roman Catholic Church there in addition to his service to the Irish Free State. Analyses the two suggestions and describes the considerations under which membership of the RIA is granted and honorary degrees conferred by the National University of Ireland. Does not regard either suggestion as appropriate because of the relationship of the RIA and NUI with academic learning. 3 items.

4 Feb 1931

Letter to Kennedy from Jaegers thanking him for hospitality from Kennedy to friends of his visiting Ireland. Notes in relation to their comment on the Imperial Conference that 'McGilligan was the most commanding personality at it'. Comments on contemporary Australian politics and notes that the entertainment of two labour ministers by de Valera was a 'sop to a certain high dignitary here and the "rebs" amongst both their constituencies'. Describes the position of labour party politics in Australia. 'Whilst the impudent but well-paid labor caucus is arrogating to itself ... the Australian public stands, helplessly, looking on and wondering what further calamity awaits them.' Refers to the contemporary economic climate. 'Merchant princes are already tottering whilst the trading community of lesser rank is already knocking at the door of the Insolvency Court.' Deals with the treatment of the Free State and republican issues in the Australian press and with his own efforts to present the Free State viewpoint. 4 pp

- 1564 Feb-Dec 1924 Dr Conn Murphy
 Correspondence between Kennedy and Dr Conn Murphy, Lecturer in the Theory of Education, Leinster College of Irish, concerning his dismissal from his post without pension or compensation. He claims to have been penalised by the Government as an example, purely from political motives. Murphy points out that a decision to withhold pension by the government could only apply to cases where incapacity or misconduct was alleged and that neither condition was applicable to him. Seeks Kennedy's advice and apologises for making a speech which was counter-productive to Kennedy's attempts to have his case reconsidered. Kennedy informs him that his statements that E. Duggan did not sign the Treaty and that his signature was pasted on were quite inaccurate and that the original copy of the Treaty had been handled by him in London. 7 items
